CENSUS REPORT

Official Figures Are Given To President Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The census bureau will tell President Roosevelt today how many people there are in these United States.

The report, informed sources said, will show that the population of the 48 states plus the District of Columbia was slightly higher than the 131,409,881 total which the census bureau fixed tentatively two months ago.

The official figures will be accompanied by a computation on the probable apportionment of congress for the next 10 years.

Unless congress changes the complicated mathematical basis for the apportionment of the 435 house of representative seats, the computation may well be final.

Preliminary figures indicated a loss of one in the 24 house seats Ohio now holds.

Harper's blood-stained car later was found deserted in Westmoreland. It was impounded immediately and was to be scrutinized carefully for fingerprints.

COLD WAVE TO HIT MANSFIELD

Northwest Feels Frigid Blast Moving East; Expected Here Tomorrow Night.

A new cold wave, expected to be the worst so far this season, was bearing down on the Mansfield area today, and forecasters said it probably will sweep into northern Ohio Tuesday night.

The cold blast had spread over the northwest Rocky mountain region and western Canada today, bringing heavy snow and dropping the temperature to 22 below zero at Prince Albert, Canada.

Snow and colder was the weatherman's forecast for northern Ohio this afternoon and tonight. Tuesday will be fair and considerably colder.

Following closely another cold wave which moved eastward last week, the new blast will be even more severe, the forecast said.

Light snow began falling in Mansfield shortly before noon today and it was expected to increase in intensity by tonight The temperature here dropped 14 degrees last night to a low of 18 above this morning. By noon today it had moved up to 25 degrees.

Heavy snow that blocked roads and closed schools was reported today in northern Michigan, northern Illinois, and Wisconsin. The mercury in those sections was falling rapidly as the cold wave moved eastward.

Lowest temperature reported this morning in the nation was 18 below zero at Devil's Lake, N. D. It was 17 below at Minot, N. D., and in northern Minnesota.

Quick action by Christine Bath of Cleveland, house president, and Ruth Anderson of Sidney probably saved some of the girls in the remodeled house from being trapped.

Awake and studying at 1:30 a. m., the two discovered the fire when the lights went out suddenly.

Most seriously damaged was the third floor room of Virginia Barrett of Chillicothe and Katherine Falknor of Eaton.

Fire Capt. Bob Holt said the blaze apparently started in rubbish near the furnace. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

NO ACTION ON BOWMAN BRIDGE

Mayor Says He Asked Engineer For Report; No Request Received, Statler Avers.

The city administration today had apparently taken no steps, as yet, on county commissioners' request that it pave the Bowman street bridge, constructed by the county early this year.

Commissioners wrote Mayor William J. Locke Saturday citing the city's failure to pave the bridge, stating that they expected the condition to be corrected immediately.

The structure was built by the county and WPA at the cost of about $14,000 last May. The city agreed to construct a permanent surface over the span when the fresh earth settled.

Commissioners, in their letter, criticized the city for failing to enforce load limits on the bridge and for making no attempt to put down the paving, and warned they would not be responsible for accidents on the bridge or damage to the structure.

Locke declined to discuss the subject this morning, stating he had asked City Engineer W. C. Statler to make a report on the condition of the span.

Statler, reached at his home where he is confined by illness, said the mayor had not made such a request.

"All I know about it is what I read in the paper," Statler said.

He added, however, that he would make a report on the bridge problem.

City council appropriated $2,480 for the paving last year, but recently diverted $2,350 for materials and labor in the street department.

A balance of $40 now remains in the fund, the difference having been spent for incidental expense on the project

Huge Gap Left In Center of Fascist Front

Nazis Launch Violent New Assault on Southampton; Hitler's Armies Reported on Move in Balkans, 60,000 Go to Rumania

(By Associated Press)

Surrender of 5,000 Italian troops, leaving a huge gap in the center of the 100-mile Balkan war front, was reported in Greek dispatches today, while in the battle of Britain, the Germans announced a violent new assault on the English shipping port of Southampton.

The Greeks said the wholesale surrender of Premier Mussolini's Fascist legions—the largest seizure of prisoners in the war—had signalled a general Italian retreat in the central sector.

"The victory, without exaggeration, is of exceptional importance, for the enemy line in this sector has been destroyed and all danger eliminated for us," a Greek dispatch said.

"Seventeen captured Italian officers disclosed that elite Italian legions which fought in Spain's civil war had taken part in the defense of this area and were retreating in disorder.

"One after another of the Italian columns abandoned their positions, leaving behind all sorts of equipment in large quantities."

On the home front, the Italians felt more sharply the pinch of the British sea blockade when their national dish spaghetti, as well as flour and rice went on the list of rationed food Effective today, it was announced, consumers will be restricted to four and one-half pounds of these products monthly

Restaurants were forbidden to serve spaghetti or rice on Tuesday and Saturday, others days, only at one meal

The assault on Southampton (pop 175,000) interrupted rail communication with London, Nazi quarters said, following up Saturday night's raid, which they asserted had left the big shipping port engulfed in "an ocean of flames"

Hitler's armies were reported on the move, meanwhile, in the troublous Balkans.

Dispatches from the Hungarian-Rumanian frontier said four fresh German divisions—approximately 60,000 men—were passing through Hungary en route to Rumania to quell increasing anarchy in Rumania, the scene last week of bloody green-shirt Iron Guard rioting and mass executions.

Nazi troops in Rumania were previously estimated at 500,000 men.

In Budapest, authoritative diplomatic sources said a secret week-end conference between Hitler and Yugoslavia's foreign minister had paved the way for Yugoslavia to join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis —which already includes Hungary, Rumania and Slovakia.

Previously, Berlin informed quarters said no further signatures were expected at present.

In the smash at Southampton, the British said about 200 Nazi warplanes roared across the channel, striking singly and in small waves. One of the raiders, it was said, swooped low to spray machine-gun tracer bullets into the housetops.

The British Press association said relays of bombers flew over the town, England's third busiest port and "continued their mission of frightfulness" until early morning.

"The damage was considerable," it said "Areas of the town are in ruins."

Hundreds of steel-helmeted soldiers started the task of demolition in the center of the city while fire-blackened rubble still smouldered.

After British censorship had first refused to permit identification of the assaulted town, a London communique confirmed that it was Southampton, peace-time port of call for trans-Atlantic liners.

"A number of fires were caused, but they were all under control by daybreak," the communique said. "Some persons were killed and others injured."

Unofficial reports said the attack was almost as severe as Saturday night's raid, which left thousands homeless.

In the 5-week-old Balkan war, Premier Mussolini's high command reported that furious attacks by an entire Greek army corp (about 45,000 men) were beaten off by

REVOLT: Disturbances Mark Quisling Regime In Norway

LONDON—(INS)—"Serious disturbances" are occurring in Norway following an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Major Vidkun Quisling, chief of the Nazi-controlled Norwegian government, Reuter's (British) News agency reported today.

The attempt against Quisling's life was made at Frederikstad, Reuter said

One bomb already has been thrown at Quisling as nation-wide bitterness against the Nazi regime flared into violence with many followers of the government head having been kidnaped and beaten up, Reuter said

Quisling was leaving a meeting when the bomb was thrown by a man in the midst of a crowd of hecklers. The missile exploded harmlessly.

Later Quisling was so violently heckled at another meeting Reuter said that Sarpsorg police were compelled to intervene to restore order.

Typical of the resentment against the Quisling regime, according to the British report, was an incident which involved the Nazi-controlled government's minister of culture, and him alone.

Scheduled to address a meeting at Larvik, he was confronted by an empty hall

23 Bodies Recovered In Cadiz Coal Mine Disaster

GRIEVED TOWN TURNS OUT FOR FIRST FUNERAL

Christmas Parade Cancelled, Holiday Lighting Delayed In Respect For Dead.

BULLETIN

CADIZ — (U.P.) — The bodies of four more of the 31 miners killed by an explosion in the depths of the Nelms mine of the Ohio and Pennsylvania Coal company Friday were removed from the workings today.

(By Associated Press)

CADIZ—Workers at the Nelms coal pit turned out today for the burial of the first of 31 blast victims while rescue crews toiled in the gas-filled depths to remove the last eight bodies.

Funeral services were scheduled here at 2 p. m. for Pete Speicher, first of Friday's explosion victims brought out. Twenty-two other bodies were carried to the surface yesterday.

John Mullen, engineer at the Ohio and Pennsylvania Coal company's mine, said four more bodies had been located but that gas and rock falls have prevented their removal. The others have not yet been found.

Mullen said it had been definitely determined that 31 were killed outright by the terrific explosion and buried under tons of rock upwards of 1,500 feet from the entrance to Ohio's deepest shaft mine.

This saddened mining town, of 2,600 population, with the memory still fresh of the nearby Willow Grove mine disaster which killed 72 last March 16, cancelled today's annual Christmas parade and postponed illumination of the Yule decorations on the Harrison county courthouse for one week.

Wrapped in canvas, the bodies were brought out yesterday in pairs and placed in the blacksmith shop. Relatives were admitted in small groups to view them. All the victims were badly burned by the blast.

Victims identified in addition to Speicher were: Homer Knox, Ben Mazeroski, Jesse Rayl, Ed Prather, F. H. Woods, Robert Dinger, Leonard Fannin, Bryan Griffith, William Carr, Emersan Howes, Lewis Sedgmer, Steve Nameth, Ora Forms, Dan Smith, Herbert Jarobe, Frank Mazeroski, John Mattern, Jules Courtville, Joe Hornyak, David McIntyre, Edgar Marchbank, John Smith and John Bernard.

Camacho Pledges Cooperation In Defense

Two Mansfield pilots, Charles and Donald Bookwalter saved themselves $40 last week when they purchased a used plane from a Buffalo, N. Y., business man. The ship had been equipped with skiis and was to have been taken to Alaska for use there during the long winter season. The Mansfield pilots were told if they wanted the ski equipment it would cost them $40 extra. They promptly vetoed the idea for the reason that the equipment would have been of little use here.

While driving a group of delegates to the Hi-Y state convention in Dayton last Friday, R. B. Chapman, Y. M. C. A. secretary, thought for a moment that one of his passengers fell out the window. Driving into Dayton, Chapman went past Wright field, where the government tests some of its latest ships. In the car with him was William Zimmerman, son of Maj. James Zimmerman, Air corps reserve, one of Mansfield's most ardent airplane enthusiasts. When young Zimmerman saw one of the latest of Uncle Sam's new planes, he turned down the window and let out a yell that caused Chapman, thinking something was wrong, to jam on the brakes and investigate. Much to his relief it was only Zimmerman showing his enthusiasm over the new plane.

DELAY ACTION ON NEW TAXES

March Income Tax Returns Awaited Before Revenue Bill Discussed.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Congressional tax experts said today that increases in corporate and individual income taxes, rather than in so-called consumer levies, probably would be used to help carry the 1941 fiscal burden.

One prominent tax consultant said no attempt probably would be made to alter taxes such as those on gasoline, cigarets, cosmetics and liquor.

Instead, he said, the treasury planned to boost taxes in existing income brackets, applying to both corporations and individuals, and, if necessary, to broaden further the income tax base to add thousands of companies and persons to the internal revenue rolls.

One senator who has participated in several tax discussions with administration experts predicted that congress would not receive a revenue bill until late May or early June. He said senate and house leaders desired first to watch the progress of March 15 income tax returns. Treasury officials have expressed the hope that these returns will offer an encouraging outlook for the next fiscal year.

It was learned that congressional and treasury advisers who met with President Roosevelt at a supper conference last Friday discussed proposals long pending in congress for reciprocal taxation of federal and state bonds. No decision was said to have been reached. Such legislation would have no immediate effect as a revenue producer, inasmuch as no effort would be made to tax bonds now outstanding.

With congress meeting only twice a week, the tax question probably will remain dormant until Mr. Roosevelt reveals the status of the government's financial structure in his annual budget message to the new congress next month.

UNITED STATES FLEET RATED WORLD'S STRONGEST SEA FORCE

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The navy's high command coupled formal reports today that the United States fleet was "probably the strongest single sea force in the world," with disclosure that additional sea and naval air bases were under consideration.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, revived the controversial issue over establishment of a strong base at the tiny island of Guam—on Japan's doorstep—with the declaration that advanced bases were necessary in both the Atlantic and Pacific to thwart any approach of hostile forces.

Stark's annual report, made public yesterday, followed the same general lines of the report issued the day before by the secretary of the navy, informing the nation that on any comparable basis its navy was "second to none."

The secretary's report asserted, however, that completion of the two-ocean fleet construction program must be pressed "to meet our naval defense requirements simultaneously in both oceans against any possible combination of powers concerting action against us."

"Anything less than this strength is hazardous to the security of the nation," the report said.

Since the end of the last fiscal year, report statistics showed, long strides have been taken toward that two-ocean fleet goal, contracts having been let last Sept. 9 for 200 warships which, when completed, will give the United States the biggest and most powerful navy in world history.

Stark prefaced his recommendations for more shore bases with the declaration that "force is now the only safe insurance of national survival."

INAUGURATION HELD WITHOUT DISTURBANCES

Wallace Praises Hemisphere Stand as Strongest By Mexican Statesman.

(By United Press)

MEXICO CITY—The government of President Manuel Avila Camacho was pledged today to a policy of democratic cooperation in the defense of the western hemisphere.

Avila Camacho was inaugurated in a 26-minute ceremony Sunday, succeeding President Lazaro Cardenas.

The day passed peacefully. There were no reverberations of an alleged plot to assassinate the new president which police claimed to have thwarted. Nor were there any anti-United States demonstrations such as greeted Vice President-Elect Henry A. Wallace when he arrived last week as President Roosevelt's ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to the inauguration.

The enthusiastic official greeting given Wallace, the appointment of pro-United States ministers to the new cabinet, the raising of the navy department to the status of a full cabinet ministry and Avila Camacho's speech were interpreted as favorable indications of closer United States-Mexican relations.

Accompanied by Ambassador Josephus Daniels and 24 other official United States representatives, Wallace occupied a place of honor at the ceremonies.

He said that Avila Camacho's pledge to lead Mexico in hemispheric cooperation "is one of the strongest ever made by any Mexican statesman."

The new president in addressing the nation, said it was fortunate the American nations had pledged cooperation to defend the continent regardless of their differences.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Speaking For Myself.

There are only a few weeks of Winter peace left to Broadway now before the Florida addicts start commuting between Swing street and the sunny sands of Miami and Palm Beach. This would be fine with everyone around Times Square if the folk who trek down to the Everglades and the Roney-Plaza would only treat these trips as they would a safari to California, or New Mexico or Detroit.

But unfortunately the Florida fans have worked up a routine to which those who stay home must submit. It goes with a trip to Florida like a baggage ticket. It is not very entertaining, but the Broadwayites who hug the home fires of the crepes suzettes at El Morocco have learned to take it along with the first snows.

It begins like this. You meet Joe in Sardi's and he says, "Well, take a good look at me. Pretty soon I'll be down in Miami with that ocean and that beach and that cabana."

You say, because this is the first southward bound bird of the season, "Oh, is that so, Joe? Isn't that nice?"

Then Joe sits down at the table. "Yessir," he says, "I'll be feeling sorry for you in a couple of weeks. I'll read about the blizzards in New York and then I will say, 'Boy, bring me a nice tall Tom Collins. I'm getting a little hot.'"

You say, "Well, I hope you have a good time, Joe."

* * *

A few nights later you are in the Stork club and Joe goes past. But not quite past. He pauses to pat the left side of his chest and you hear a crackling noise.

"Got them right in here," he says. "My tickets. I leave Thursday on the Orange Juice Flyer. Last tickets for three weeks. I had to call Eddie Rickenbacker and Dick Merrill to get them. Just try and get on a plane to Florida."

You say, "Well, have fun, Joe."

"I'll send you a postcard," he says, "ha, ha."

* * *

On Thursday you are lunching quietly downstairs at 21 and Joe rushes into the bar. You duck behind a sugar bowl, but Joe sees you.

"I'm all packed," he beams. "All ready to go. Tomorrow I'll be wearing white pants."

"Have a nice trip, Joe," you say.

Joe says pityingly, "Not much chance of your getting down this month, I suppose."

You shake your head. You do not say, "No, not a chance in the world of getting me away from snow at Christmas time and holly berries instead of bougainvillea and New Year's Eve within listening distance of the Times Square racket. You just say, "No, I'm afraid not, Joe. The old work, you know."

"Well, goodbye, kid," Joe says. "I'll be thinking of you when I'm down swimming in that ocean and sunning on that beach and . . ."

"Goodbye, Joe," you say.

* * *

Then ensues period of time in which you do not see Joe. This may be a week or two weeks or a month or even six months. But all too soon, it is over, and one day you are in Lindy's quietly consuming some chicken livers when in walks Joe.

"How are you, kid?" he says. "I just got back yesterday. Boy, am I sorry I didn't take Edna's advice and stay another week."

"Boy," you think but you do not say, "so am I."

"Did you read in the paper about the weather?" Joe demands. "Only rained one day in six weeks. One day. And even then it didn't last. Cleared up in time for me to go to the track. Boy, that track. Those ponies ran for me like they were my little brothers."

"That's fine, Joe," you say.

Joe looks concerned. "You didn't get a chance to come down, did you, kid?" he asks.

"No," you say.

"Too bad," Joe sympathizes. "You would have loved it. All that sun. How do you like this tan?"

* * *

Maybe you do not see Joe for a week after that, but there will come the evening when you decide to take in a movie and you are in the Music Hall about to get into the elevator when you see Joe, also ascending. It is too late to back out.

"This weather," he says. "How do you like this weather? Snow for three days. Took me twenty minutes to get three blocks in a taxi. What kind of living is this? New York is no place to be in the winter time. It's great in the spring, great in the fall when you go to the football games, but in the winter the only place to be is Florida."

"It's certainly cold, Joe," you agree.

Joe is pretty distrait. "Look at what's left of my sun tan," he moans. "Three nights in El Morocco and I look like all the people who didn't go to Florida. The barber uses the sun lamp, and even so, it fades."

"It's a shame, Joe," you say.

* * *

Less than a week later you run into Joe at the Hurricane and although he is even paler than he looked in the Music Hall elevator he is considerably happier.

"Well, I made up my mind," he said. "I'm leaving tomorrow. Life is too short. I sent Edna a wire and said I'll be down on the first plane I can get. Eddie Rickenbacker fixed me up.

"Well so long, kid," Joe says. "When it gets below zero up here just think of me down in Miami, in that cabana, with . . ."

* * *

And everything is fine until one day when you meet Pete in Sardi's and he begins "Well, take a good look at me. Pretty soon I'll be in Miami with that ocean and . . ."

You haven't got a chance.

Stanford Picks Nebraska as Rose Bowl Opponent

Redskins and Chicago Play For Pro Title

Professional Gridiron Championship At Stake In Battle Sunday.

NEW YORK — (UP) — The Washington Redskins and the Chicago Bears, who gave Washington fans a football spine-tingler only two weeks ago, will battle in Griffith stadium again next Sunday but the stakes will be bigger.

The National league championship, which means the professional championship of the world, will be the prize.

The Redskins and Bears clinched the division honors yesterday to qualify for a replay of the 1937 championship game which the Redskins, led by Slingin' Sammy Baugh, won 28-21.

* * *

In their only game this year Washington won 7-3, the Bears missing victory when they were unable to punch over a touchdown from the one yard line in the final seconds of play.

* * *

Washington finished the regular season of play with a 10-6 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles to take the eastern title, but it was little Davey O'Brien, the Eagles 150-pound back, who stole the show. O'Brien, playing his final game before joining the G-Men, staged the greatest exhibition of passing in football history. He completed 33 passes of the 60 he threw, breaking Baugh's recently established record by 10. His aerials were good for 316 yards—all but 16 of the total yards made by his team. O'Brien's tosses also enabled a teammate, Don Looney, to set a new mark of 14 passes caught in one game. Not one of O'Brien's passes was intercepted.

* * *

The Bears became champions of the west when they defeated the Cardinals 31-23 in a strangely played game. Rolling up all their points in the first half the Bears held the Cards scoreless until the final period when their intra-city rivals scored a safety, piled up three touchdowns and kicked all the extra points.

* * *

Even if the Bears had lost, they would have backed into the western title because the runnerup Green Bay Packers were held to a 13-13 tie by the Cleveland Rams. The Brooklyn Dodgers scored their first victory in 10 years over the New York Giants, 14-6 on Ace Parker's two touchdown passes.

Canton Grid Coach Resigns

Board of Education Acts on Reed's Action Tonight.

CANTON —(UP)— The long shadow of Massillon high school's magnificent football record hung over Canton again today as John Reed, Canton McKinley high school coach awaited action on his resignation today.

* * *

Reed has put his resignation into the hands of school superintendent Jesse H. Mason who said that Reed's status would depend on the action of the board of education tonight but that he would probably remain as a faculty member and baseball coach.

* * *

In five years as head coach, Reed has directed the McKinley gridders to 39 victories, seven losses and two ties. However, he has been criticized for five straight losses to Massillon, Canton's traditional rival.

Reed's team was the only opponent to score against Massillon during the season just past. His statement to the superintendent said:

"For the best interests of athletics at McKinley high school, I feel it is my duty to relinquish my football coaching duties. I shall do my best to cooperate with my successor, whoever he may be.

* * *

Reed graduated from Penn State and started coaching at Braddock, Pa., where his record attracted the Canton board of education in 1936. He was brought here to fill the vacancy left by Jimmy Aiken when the latter was made athletic director and head football coach at Akron university.

* * *

In 1936, 1937, 1938 and 1940 his McKinley teams lost but one game a season—but they lost it to Massillon.

Stanford's Indians, Who Play Nebraska In Rose Bowl

Entire Massillon Team Selected

Teams That Will Play In Nation's Bowl Games.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Here are the lineups for the various Bowl games on New Year's Day:

Rose Bowl: Stanford vs. Nebraska.

Sugar Bowl: Boston College vs. Tennessee.

Cotton Bowl: Fordham vs. Texas A. & M., Rice or Southern Methodist.

Orange Bowl: Mississippi State vs. Lafayette, Penn State or Georgetown.

Sun Bowl: Western Reserve vs. Arizona State.

Minor League Meeting Opens

Trade Talk Heard Freely as Annual Meeting Opens.

ATLANTA—(AP)—Major league trade talk was heard freely today as baseball's moguls began their annual bargaining season as a side attraction to the convention of the nation's minor loops.

* * *

No one would admit that any deals were near completion, but it was considered certain that some purchases or trades would come out of the hotel pow-wows before the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues closes its parley Friday. Business sessions start Wednesday.

* * *

Two National leaguers, President Larry MacPhail of Brooklyn and Manager Frankie Frisch of Pittsburgh led the increasing procession of big time leaders into Atlanta.

Catchers Mickey Owen and Gus Mancuso, other players and cash were mentioned in a deal brewing between Brooklyn and the St. Louis Cardinals. Frisch and Pirate President William E. Benswanger planned further conversations with Card General Manager Branch Rickey on swapping plans.

Cincinnati and the Boston Bees reportedly were considering a deal involving Infielders Eddie Miller and Billy Myers, along with about $60,000. The St. Louis Browns are known to be ready to dish out cash for two pitchers and a seasoned catcher, although unwilling to part with any of their regulars. Washington wants two infielders and an outfielder. Boston's Red Sox have an eye out for Catcher Frank Hayes of the Philadelphia Athletics.

* * *

An unexpected move was made by the New York Yankees. They planned to pass up this convention of some 23 minor loops in favor of the major league sessions in Chicago next week, but now Manager Joe McCarthy is expected here, probably Wednesday.

Some hints were dropped that the moguls are seeking a voice in the selection of baseball's commissioner. He is now chosen by the majors. The minors are tackling a revision of the minor minor league agreement covering all organized baseball which expires in 1942 simultaneously with Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis' term.

Mansfield High gridders failed to make the all-Ohio high school football team selected and announced today by United Press, but the squad bristles with names of Tyger opponents of the past season.

Middleweight Scrap Tops Charity Fight Show Tonight

CLEVELAND—(INS)—A middleweight scrap to a decision between two comparative unknowns today loomed as the best fight on the star-studded Cleveland News Christmas fund fight show in the Arena tonight.

* * *

The middleweight scrap will be between Anton Christoforidis, the handsome Greek champion, and Jimmy Bivins, Cleveland's undefeated Negro battler, who took the last meeting of the pair in a close decision.

* * *

Pat Comiskey, the Jersey heavy, was a 3-to-1 choice over Don Siegel, former Michigan footballer. Comiskey is considered by many observers as potential championship material.

* * *

In the other heavyweight scrap on the card Arturo Godoy, the rugged Chilean who afforded Joe Louis considerable trouble, is figured to take Tony Musto, Chicago rubber man.

* * *

Other scraps on the card include Georgie Toy, a Chinese kayo expert, and Mike Gamiere, a couple of home town boys, Mike Kaplan of Boston and Saverio Turiello of New York, and Mike Raffa of Newell, W. Va., against Everett Rightmire of Des Moines, Ia.

Cornhuskers Hold Title Of Big Six

Indians Last Appeared In Rose Bowl In 1936 With Southern Methodist.

PALO ALTO, Calif.—(AP)—Stanford university, unbeaten and untied Pacific coast conference champion, and the University of Nebraska, once-defeated titleholder of the Big Six will clash Jan. in the annual Rose Bowl football game at Pasadena.

Announcement of Stanford's invitation and Nebraska's acceptance for the game was made here last night.

* * *

Al Masters, director of Athletics, said he would leave by plane today for Pasadena to set up the ticket organization. His office already has been deluged with applications for seats, some 90,000 of which are available.

* * *

Nebraska, defeated 13-7 by Minnesota in this year's opening game, never has played in the Rose Bowl. Stanford, which closed its regular season last Saturday by beating University of California 13-7, last appeared in Pasadena in 1936, when the Indians beat Southern Methodist 7-0.

Stanford, with a new coach in the person of Clark Shaughnessy, former Chicago mentor, made a phenomenal sweep this year after a dismal 1939 season which netted only one victory.

Stanford started strongly this season by crushing the University of San Francisco 27-0 and bowled over successively Oregon, 13-0, Santa Clara 7-6, Washington State 26-14, Southern California 21-7, University of California at Los Angeles, 20-14, Washington 20-10, Oregon State 28-14 and California 13-7.

The western representative in the Rose Bowl, where the New Year's day "bowl" games began, always is the leading team of the Pacific Coast conference.

Masters said he believed Stanford would meet one of the nation's strongest teams in Nebraska, despite the Cornhuskers setback by Minnesota.

The Cornhuskers bounced back from their defeat to complete their schedule with the following victories; Indiana, 13-7; Kansas, 53-2; Missouri, 20-7; Oklahoma, 13-0; Iowa, 14-6; Pittsburgh, 9-7; Iowa State, 21-12; Kansas State, 20-0.

* * *

Major Lawrence "Biff" Jones, Nebraska coach, said his team would train at Lincoln until after the Christmas holidays, then move to Arizona. Stanford will train here for the present.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—Bob Feller would have been in the movies now if the Indians had won the pennant. . . . Nomination for the top coaching job of the season: Clark Shaughnessy. . . . Lew Jenkins, the lightweight king, has organized his own swing band and is available for bookings. . . . The job of managing the Giants' Jersey City farm still is wide open. . . . Up to now Connie Mack has nixed all offers to sell or trade Frankie Hayes—and he has had plenty.

* * *

WHY ALL THE FUSS?

Apparently Joe Louis takes Al McCoy more seriously than a lot of other peopjle. . . . Anyway, the champ arrived in Boston for training armed with two baggage trunks loaded with training equipment. . . . Boston writers were as surprised as anybody, and some of them said so.

* * *

ODDS AND ENDS

Few persons know it, but the day after he lost his first game with the Washington Redskins four years ago, Coach Ray Flaherty was given a ten-year contract by Owner George Preston Marshall. . . . New York, for some reason still unexplained, is awfully keen for a Max Baer-Billy Conn fight. Personally, we thought the Conn-Savold fight in the Garden the other night smelled to high heaven—not that there was any business done, the fight just smelled.

* * *

LAUGH OF THE WEEK

Those New Orleans bookies who didn't know the Brown-Columbia game was played during the morning and accepted bets right up till noon, just as if nothing had happened—and took the worst shellacking since the fair grounds went out of business—Haw!

F. B. RECORD DEPT.

First complete check-up (still unofficial) shows Davey O'Brien was responsible for at least five National Football league records when he pitched 60 passes and completed 33 for 316 yards against Washington Sunday. . . . He set new individual and team marks for completions and yards gained in one game, and helped Don Looney set another record by catching 14 passes. . . . Besides that, Davey seems sure with a new team and individual season records for completions. . . . Xmas Dept., first card received from Lincoln Mackim, drumbeater for Kent State (O.) University.

These sheep just wouldn't be

Here's Some Close Harmony

In New York to sing and talk on Eddie Cantor's radio program, Michigan's great All-American football star, Tom Harmon, plans a radio career now even though he probably could get $25,000 to play pro football. Harmon said he would be satisfied to get a $5,000 radio job instead of playing the pro grid sport. He is shown in close Harmon-y with Cantor.

Western Reserve Gridders Leave Dec. 26 For Sun Bowl

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Western Reserve university's football team will leave here Dec. 26 for its place in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex.

The Ohioans will be entertained by the Arizona State Teachers on New Year's Day. Formalities of invitation were completed yesterday by the Sun Carnival association.

Coach William (Bill) Edwards notified his complete squad of 26 players to resume practice Dec. 9 He said they would leave here in time to get in both sightseeing and practice in Texas.

About Cleveland's University Circle there was jubilation that to Reserve had come a national honor to reward years of good records.

True, Reserve is not one of the country's "big" football teams. True, it does not have players "in the money." True, no one will claim this year's team is one of Reserve's greatest.

None has played harder, however; none has gone farther on nerve and speed.

"It's a great trip for the boys and that's the real reason we're going," said Karl Davis, athletics director. "If they didn't want to play we wouldn't have accepted."

Western Reserve lost only one game this year, a 20-to-12 affair at Dayton and won the Big Four championship. The Tempe, Ariz., team lost one game too, a 17-to-0 beating by Hardin-Simmons. The Arizonians also had ties with Texas Mines and Conzaga.

The Sun Carnival association estimated 15,000 spectators would attend. Reserve is guaranteed $5,000 and possibly a percentage of gate receipts. The trip will cost $4,000 Davis said and Reserve's share probably will not exceed $7,000.

The Sun Bowl will be a "borrowed time" game for the four senior backfield sparklers. They are:

* * *

Dick Booth, halfback whom his coach praises as a candidate for little All-America selection; Johnny Ries, another halfback, known to fellow students as a one-man team; Steve Belichick, fullback, of whom Coach Edwards says, he's a fullback until he gets through the line and then he's a halfback," and Paul Anderson, quarterback.

The line averages 194 pounds and replacements are few.

Packers, Rams In 13-13 Tie

Green Bay Scores 10 Points In Final Period; Finishes Season in 2nd Place.

CLEVELAND, O. — (U.P.) — The Green Bay Packers today hold second place in the final Western division standings of the National Professional Football league.

* * *

The Packers staged a 10 point rally in the final period of their encounter with the Cleveland Rams here yesterday to gain a 13 to 13 tie. Don Hutson, star Green Bay end, scored one touchdown, his seventh of the season, and veteran Fullback Clark Hinkle added two field goals for the Packers.

* * *

Johnny Drake and Ollie Cordill scored Cleveland's two touchdowns. The Ram scores came in the second and third quarters. Going into the last quarter Green Bay had only a first period field goal to its credit.

In addition to seven touchdowns, Hutson has scored 15 extra points for a total of 57 points, the highest in the National league.

Five juniors, all veterans, have been delegated to start for Xavier with Musketeer Captain Boze Litzinger, senior guard, not expected to see much action because of a knee injury.

FORMER AKRON YANKEE PILOT LOOKING FOR JOB

AKRON—(INS)—Horace L. (Pip) Koehler, for three years manager of the Akron Yankees of the Middle Atlantic league, attended minor league baseball meeting in Atlanta today, looking for a better job.

Koehler was released by the New York Yankees, parent club of the Akron team, so that he might seek a connection with some team above Class C.

BIERMAN GUEST SPEAKER

MASSILLON, O.—(INS)—Bernie Bierman, coach of the Minnesota Gophers, Big Ten champions, will be the principal speaker at a banquet Thursday night honoring the Massillon high school Tigers, state scholastic champions, it was announced today.

PLAY IN BOWL

ORLANDO, Fla. —(AP)— Wilberforce (O.) university will clash with Florida A & M's Rattlers here Dec. 7 in the Orange Blossom football game, played annually by the nation's top-flight colored college teams.

THEATERS

Masked Adventurer.

Tyrone Power is cast as the famous masked adventurer whose jagged sword mark strikes terror to the hearts of all but the lovely Linda Darnell, in the picture "The Mark of Zorro" which is showing at the Ohio. The story is of the night-riding avenger who flourished in the most exciting days of Old California, leaving behind the mark that made everyone fearful of him Basil Rathbone and Gale Sondergaard have featured roles in this production.

New Tunes in Comedy.

Seldom have there been so many catchy tunes incorporated in a single film-musical as are interpolated throughout the screen version of "Too Many Girls," the picture at the Madison. The story revolves around the adventures of four all-American football stars hired by a wealthy man to enroll at a small college and serve as bodyguards to his madcap, romantically-inclined daughter. Co-feature is the drama "They Knew What They Wanted," starring Carole Lombard and Charles Laughton.

Struggles For Freedom.

Cary Grant and Martha Scott are starred as "The Howards of Virginia," those two young Americans who fell so madly in love that they broke with all tradition; who believed in their destiny and the destiny of their country with such intensity that they willingly offered themselves and their future to share in America's struggle for freedom. All this takes place at the Park in the picture of that name. Co-attraction is "Military Academy," with Tommy Kelly, Bobby Jordan, Jackie Searl and David Holt.

History of Oil Fields.

"Boom Town," showing at the Ritz, covers the entire field of the fabulous oil field while following the story of two men who meet in a rough boom town and form a partnership. They remain friends through adversity, even when one marries the sweetheart of the other. It is presented by the all-star cast headed by Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr. Second attraction is "Haunted Honeymoon" with Robert Momtgomery and Constance Cummings in the leads.

From Best Sellers.

Beginning Tuesday at the Majestic is "'Til We Meet Again" co-starring Merle Oberon and George Brent, and "Rebecca" starring Laurence Oliver and Joan Fontaine. In the latter the picture is taken from the best-selling novel of that name by Daphne du Maurier. Miss Fontaine appears as Olivier's second wife, a young and unsophisticated girl who is haunted by the brilliant part of her husband's first wife.

Would You Risk Your Neck For A Hobby?

By WICK TEMPLE

McKEESPORT — (AP) — Wanta risk your neck for the sake of a hobby?

* * *

That's what the McKeesport Olympics — like thousands of other sandlot football players—are doing, and three of their 22 donated uniforms are not in use at the moment.

Gridders who give their all for dear old whatsit have nothing on these Pittsburgh suburb semi-pro stalwarts. These "forgotten men" of football play just for the fun of it and one has given up his life on the gridiron.

Take Charlie Spisak, 32-year-old halfback and former Carnegie Tech star. He's married and has three children but played with the Olympics for two years until his kneecap was broken in a game with the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Pro league.

Now Spisak, assistant Olympic coach, has a stiff leg but the doc says he has a good chance of regaining the use of it. After a month he still is on crutches.

Then there's coal miner Mike Fedutes, 20-year-old back who was asked "would you still play even though you knew you might break your leg or suffer an injury that would keep you from working the rest of your life?"

"Yes, sir, I like it," declared the gridder. "I've got to do something, I guess that's why I pick on football."

An hour later Fedutes was on his way to a hospital with a hip injury. He'll be in a cast six or seven weeks and may be injured permanently. But he still laughed and joked while being taken from the field.

Quite a few years back an Olympic player was killed when kicked in the head.

"Despite the crowds, weather or whatnot, they play and like it," reports the team's spare-time publicist, Dom Schettino. "Some games they make $10 each but the next they don't make a nickel. One game this year we cleared just 55 cents, bought 11 bottles of soda pop and split it up. Players average $2.50 to $3 a game.

"It's a general rule that you end up loser if you get hurt. That's what we have to worry about—holding benefit games, raffles, dances to help pay hospital bills.

"Our players all live within a 50-mile radius of McKeesport — come from coal mines, farms, steel mills. Most of them are former college players—a few high school players."

Player-Coach Joe McCune, they call him "Bullet," is typical of his players and expresses their sentiments in these words:

"The rich man goes out in his spare hours and plays golf, tennis, handball or other sports. I want to play football."

His teams, playing 10 games a season against similar outfits, have won three-fourths of their starts in four years.

* * *

"Bullet" Joe draws $9 daily making shells at a McKeesport munitions plant but he'll lay off any day to play football. Joe is about 29 (he won't tell exactly) and is described by Coach Frank Wolf of Waynesburg college as the best lineman he ever tutored. McCune was at Waynesburg from 1933 through 1936.

* * *

Tuffy Thornhill, former Stanford coach, was a member of the 1917 Olympics. Carl Snavely of Cornell also once played a couple of games with them. Many former members of the team stepped into coaching jobs just as McCune wants to do.

CHAPTER XI

Allan admired the new apartment. He lounged in one of the deep satin chairs perfectly at ease.

"It looks like you," he informed Glory. "I like to think of you living here." He took a cigaret out of the crystal container. "By the way, sweet, I'm going to be out of town for a couple of weeks. Leaving tomorrow."

Glory sank down into the chair opposite his. "Must you?" she sighed.

"I must. It's business," Allan said regretfully. "But I'll call you long distance every night."

But Allan did not keep his promise to call and on the third night Glory sat staring at the silent telephone wondering. Where had he gone? Was he tired of her already? Oh, but it couldn't be that. He was always so considerate, so tender. Nevertheless Glory felt an uncanny premonition of disaster. It was terrible to love any one so much. Never to know from one day to another if Allan would fulfill the prophecy made by Helen and Scottie.

When the doorbell rang she flew to answer it, but it was only Helen.

"Who do you suppose is living in that new building down the street?" she asked, taking a cigaret.

"I can't imagine. Sit down Helen. You look tired."

"I am," Helen admitted. "Glory, I could hardly believe my eyes! But it's Honey Newton! I met her on my way home. She moved in just after we did and she doesn't seem too pleased to know that we are in the same neighborhood. How in the world can she, a manicurist, afford it? Those apartments must cost even more than this one."

Glory said she had no idea. She couldn't work up an curiosity about Honey Newton tonight. Why didn't Allan call? Maybe something had happened to him. An accident, if he had taken his car. He always drove so recklessly.

"Heard from Allan?" Helen inquired.

Glory shook her head. "No. I don't even know where he is."

Helen ground out her cigaret. "Well, I think I'll turn in." But she paused at her bedroom door and said. "By the way, Glory, I suppose you know Mona Greer is on location?"

Glory looked up surprised. She hadn't even thought about the actress lately.

Helen's voice was kind. "I know you don't like to talk about it, honey, but why kid yourself? Mona's been in Mexico working on a picture for weeks—in fact ever since you had your screen test."

* * *

Glory's heart sank. Could it be possible that Allan was seriously involved with Mona? Had he been spending his time with Glory simply because the actress was away? No wonder he didn't care if he was seen publicly with her. Mona wouldn't be able to see the papers in Mexico. Suspicions began to creep like slow poison through her mind. Had Allan gone to see Mona? Why didn't he telephone?

Her eyes rested on a photograph of Allan in a silver frame. She loved him so much. He had told her that he cared too, over and over again, but he had never mentioned marriage. Oh, why didn't the telephone ring? How could he hurt her this way? Suddenly the buzzer sounded. It might be a telegram from Allan, which would explain everything.

But it was Mark Spencer who closed the door quietly behind him.

"I want to talk to you," he said.

* * *

Mark seated himself and looked around with interest.

"You certainly have a fancy place here."

Glory nodded. She wished Mark had not chosen tonight to call. Her nerves were already strained to the breaking point listening for the telephone. Surely Allan would call! She would not be very pleasant company for Mark.

But Mark Spencer apparently had not come for a social visit.

"Why have you been avoiding me?" he asked bluntly.

"Oh, Mark, I haven't meant to, honestly. But I've been working so hard at the studio. It isn't an easy job."

"I could have told you that," he reminded her.

* * *

In the satin lounging pajamas and the studio make-up she had not removed, Glory presented a bizarre picture to Mark Spencer's disapproving eyes.

"I've seen you exactly three times in the last six weeks," he continued. "And twice Scottie was along."

He was as persistent as a dog with a bone, Glory thought, annoyed. He acted as if he were cross-examining a hostile witness.

She tried to smile. "I'm sorry, Mark, but you don't seem to understand what a lot of things I have to do."

"You've changed," Mark stated flatly. "We use to have such swell times together, Glory. You were so sweet and real."

What on earth was the matter with him? Mark was usually so courteous. She had never seen him like this before.

"And now," he continued, "you're trying to be so blase—so sophisticated. It's not very becoming, Glory; it's not the real you."

Glory stared at him in amazement.

"Why don't you give it up?" he asked. "Give it up before you've become a puppet incapable of any real emotion. I've seen those pictures of you. I've seen that public smile you turn on. You even let the studio run your romance—let them cook up this 'Is it love?' business with Allan Rhodes."

Glory flared. "The studio has nothing to do with it. I happen to be in love with Allan."

"Oh, no you're not!" Mark asserted. "You just think you are. Because he's part of this crazy life you're living. You're just like the other ten million who fall for him."

Glory was furious. "Don't you dare talk that way to me, Mark Spencer. You have no right to say such things."

"Some one has to tell you," Mark said more kindly, "and apparently no one else has had nerve enough. Can't you see, Glory, what you're doing to your life?"

"I'm going to be a star," the girl replied coldly. "That's all that matters."

"But it isn't. All you can ever get out of being a star is money, and that won't mean enough to a woman like you. You need a home and children."

"Don't you think that's for me to decide?"

"No. Because you don't know what you want. This career business has turned your head. You've lost your perspective. You're trying so hard to be a glamour girl that it's all you can think about. But someday, when you're as hard-boiled as Mona Greer . . ."

"Stop it!" Glory commanded. "Please, Mark! I'm too tired to argue about anything tonight. Besides, nothing you say will make any difference. I'll never give up my career."

"You're getting spoiled and conceited," Mark accused, "but it isn't too late to change. Give it up before you've lost all the real qualities that matter."

* * *

Tears of fury stood in Glory's eyes. In spite of herself, Mark made her feel all wrong. He made her feel like a foolish little girl.

"You're such a baby. You don't know what you're doing. You have no business being out here alone. If I were your father, I'd put an end to this nonsense."

"But you're not!" Glory reminded him.

Mark picked up his hat. "All right. Go ahead — run around with this patent-haired lounge lizard!"

"Mark!" Glory cried.

"Maybe I was wrong," he admitted as anger flashed like points of steel from his gray eyes. "Maybe you're just a glamour girl after all. A glamour girl who's gone Hollywood!"

* * *

He jammed his hat on his head, strode to the door and banged ti behind him angrily.

Glory stared after him. His words swarmed like angry bees through her mind. "Spoiled! Puppet! Glamour girl!" They hurt more than she cared to admit. But why did Mark insist that she was just a woman at heart? A woman who needed a home and children? And what did she care what Mark Spencer thought? Why should she care?

Glory began to cry. It wasn't because of what Mark had said, she told herself furiously. It was Allan! After ten o'clock and still he had not telephoned! Suddenly her contract, her lovely apartment, her closet filled with beautiful clothes meant nothing to her. She was so lonely! Why didn't Allen call?

The days passed and still no word from Allan. Glory tried to find out at the Studio where he had gone but no one seemed to know. Or if they did, they were not telling. Glory threw herself into her work trying to forget her troubles. She would show Mark Spencer whether or not she was an actress!

She had a colored maid now to take care of the apartment. Tillie, who was fat and placid, came every morning and at night until after dinner. She adored Glory and waited on her as if she were a queen.

And now the first picture in which Glory had a part was to have its premiere. Glory had seen the rushes but she was thrilled at the prospect of seeing her name on the screen. Of course it would be in small letters at the bottom of the list—but it would be there.

* * *

Scottie and Helen had a drink in the living room while Tillie helped Glory dress. She was wearing white chiffon with a full-length coat and turban to match. There would be many pictures snapped tonight and Van had assured her that it would photograph well.

"You sure do look beautiful," Tillie beamed.

"No one will pay much attention to me tonight," Glory laughed.

"Don't you worry, honey," Tillie comforted, "someday you'll be a big star too. Bigger than any of them—even Mona Greer!"

Glory frowned. Why must every one talk about Mona? Ever since she had come to Hollywood, Mona seemed to dog her footsteps like an evil omen. Mona had caused her to lose her first job. Had she also caused her to lose Allan? If only he could have been here tonight! He knew the date that picture was scheduled to open. He might have wired her, or even written! Every one except Mark seemed afraid to mention his name to her.

FIFTY TO START GROUND SCHOOL TRAINING STUDY

Class Opens 72-Hour Course at High School Tonight; Harrington In Charge.

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

Tonight 50 youths between the ages of 19 and 26 will meet at Senior high school to begin study in a 72-hour ground school course conducted under government supervision in connection with the Civil Pilot Training program.

The class will meet every Monday and Thursday for the next 12 weeks and spend from two, three or four hours nightly in the classroom with their textbooks.

At the completion of the course in Aircraft operation meteorology and navigation, flight scholarships, consisting of 50 hours of flying will be awarded to the 15 top-ranking students.

The class will be tutored by James R. Harrington, airport manager and the government instructor here. It is the third class to be started in Mansfield since the CAA stepped up its national defense program early this year.

A group of 15 pilots has already been turned out and 15 others are now taking their flight training at municipal airport.

* * *

And speaking of flight training, 10 students of Ashland college enrolled in a similar course at the Ashland airport will be flying from the Mansfield port shortly after the first of next year.

Owner of the Ashland air field where the students have been taking their flight training has notified the city that its lease of the port will be terminated on Dec. 31, and Walter Shuey, field operator, will bring the prospective flyers to the port here for instruction.

It means also that 10 ships quartered at the Ashland field will be brought to Mansfield and Ashland pilots will have to shuttle back and forth to Mansfield to do their flying.

But not for long though if plans drafted by the city and several of the leading business men go through.

The plans on which Ashland city officials are working has Mansfield airmen worried too. They see their visions of a No. 1 port here going out the window and there isn't much they can do about it.

The neighboring group has already taken option on a 200-acre tract west of Ashland and expect to put down hard surfaced runways and develop a field that will attract airlines to stop for express and mail as well as passengers.

Local flyers see the improvement as a serious threat to Mansfield's future on the air map. They point out that once air service is established at Ashland the Mansfield port will be just another "hay field."

They have sought assistance from every quarter during the past year but have gotten little in the way of help for needed improvements. They've fought a losing battle and it begins to look like a lot of the fellows are going to say, "I told you so."

It is understood that the government has already given Ashland officials assurance that when an improved port is established there they will move the Hayesville emergency field there. Mansfield airmen claim this would be the "beginning of the end" for Mansfield's port.

Harrington has received information on the new aviation cadet program now being offered by the U. S. Navy.

The course, he was told this week, is open to any unmarried man who has at least two years of college training to his credit.

It consists of one month elimination training given at the naval base at Grosse Isle, Mich., nine months at Pensacola, Fla., as an aviation cadet, following that a commission in the naval reserve as an ensign, with three years of active duty with the fleet.

While at Grosse Isle, the young pilots will receive $84 a month, at Pensacola, $105 a month, then $205 a month when they are made ensigns, with pay after 18 months in the navy of $280 a month.

Men are free to marry after having spent one month in fleet duty and pay is raised at that time to $359 a month. Not bad pay for a young fellow who can make the grade.

Mansfielders will probably be surprised to learn that Jean DuBuque, of the engineering section of the CAA, who has been a frequent visitor to Mansfield has been transferred from Columbus to Fort Worth, Texas.

DuBuque will be in charge of the CAA's CPT ground school training in the fourth region—Texas, New Mexico, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"Arizona." Screenplay by Claude Binyon from the story by Clarence B. Kelland. Directed by Wesley Ruggles. Principals: Jean Arthur, William Holden, Warren William, Porter Hall, Paul Harvey, George Chandler, Regis Toomey, Edgar Buchanan.

* * * * *

The covered wagons still roll westward across the screen, and this time it's to the primitive village of pioneer Tucson, where there's plenty of unlawful goings-on to worry any honest man or woman. In this picture, it's Phoebe Titus (Arthur) who does most of the worrying until a new wagon train brings handsome Peter Muncie (Holden) into the cause.

Phoebe, the first American woman in the village, makes her living baking pies but has her eye on owning the biggest ranch in the Arizona territory. She's a tough one, is Phoebe, fully able to take care of herself against all comers, but when Muncie comes to town the woman in her begins to show.

Through Arizona's desertion by the Union in the Civil War, through its temporary adoption by the Confederacy, through its return to the Stars and Stripes, Phoebe almost single-handedly fights for her freight business against wily Lazarus Ward (Hall) who is in cahoots with the Injuns and with slick Mister Carteret (William). With Peter's help, Phoebe comes to glory, gets her ranch and finally her man—although Carteret is waiting after the wedding to shoot it out with the bridegroom.

Western spectacle in the grand Ruggles manner and loaded with authenticity and "production," the film entertains nicely. Tops for excitement is the cattle stampede sequence; tops for "phony" incredibility is the final shooting scrape, during which the tense little bride controls her nerves—or shows she hasn't any—by ordering up a mess of groceries while she's waiting for the outcome.

"You'll Find Out." Screenplay by James V. Kern from story by David Butler and James V. Kern. Directed by David Butler. Principals: Kay Kyser, Peter Lorre, Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, Helen Parrish, Dennis O'Keefe, Alma Kruger, and Kay Kyser's band (Ginny Simms, Harry Babbitt, Ish Kabibble, Sully Mason, etc.)

* * *

A great improvement over Kyser's first movie. "You'll Find Out" mixes music and horror comedy for an hour or so that spells refreshment.

Kay and the boys play a "society date" at the lonely mansion of Aunt Margo (Kruger) in honor of Janis's (Parrish) 21st birthday. The mansion is a creepy joint, full of the usual sliding panels, secret cellars, and archeological relics.

Janis is in constant danger. A phony Oriental prince (Lugosi), a wolf in sheep's clothing (Karloff) and a pretended scientist (Lorre) see to that. It's Kay, finally, who solves the mess and thwarts the unholy three, and incidentally acquires for his orchestra the amazing Sonovox, here actually used on the screen for the first time. It's a hit novelty, and the picture is first class fun.

CHAPTER ONE

The Fisherman and The Mermaid.

THERE was once a fisherman who lived in a warm and pretty country with his young, blond wife, who was called Inga. Their gray stone house stood on a hill and their garden ran down to the sea.

They would have been very happy but they had no children. And they wanted a son very badly.

But I shall tell you how they got a very fine son, and how I, and how after many adventures he became king.

STEEL BIDDING BRINGS STOCK MARKET CHEER

Other Industrials Join In Forward Movement on Wall Street.

NEW YORK — Quiet bidding for steels and other industrials today gave the stock market a moderately cheerful appearance.

Among early forward-looking issues were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, General Motors Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, General Electric, Union Carbide, Du Pont, Chesapeake & Ohio, Western Union, U. S. Rubber and Sperry.

Improved tendencies were displayed by bonds and commodities. Speculative quarters, brokers said, seemed to feel a bit better over the foreign war picture.

Boardroom analysts scanned the survey of the magazine "Steel," which said the rate of sales gain in this industry was less pronounced, with November showing a smaller margin over October than in other recent months.

While orders were found to be coming in generally more briskly than shipments, it was added, more producers were expecting some slight and perhaps temporary recession in demand, either in the current month or in the first quarter.

HUGE GAP LEFT IN CENTER OF FASCIST FRONT

Greeks Report 5,000 Italian Troops Surrender; Nazis Batter Southampton.

Italian troops attempting to halt the Greek counter-invasion in Albania.

"The enemy was thrown back to original positions, suffering serious losses," the Italian communique said, noting also that an Italian colonel, leading the 47th Fascist regiment, "perished gloriously."

In contrast to the Italian report, the Greeks said that fresh Italian shock troops, rushed into the 100-mile battlefront, were being driven back and that Greek columns scored "important" new advances everywhere.

A Greek spokesman pictured the fighting line as swinging like a barn door toward the Adriatic sea, pivoting on a hinge on the Albanian coast, near Argirocastro, to Lake Ochrida, on the Yugoslav frontier.

In the Lake Ochrida sector, the Greeks said, the Italians were retreating through ice and snow toward Elbasani, 40 miles north of captured Pogradetz, on the highway to the Albanian capital, Tirana.

A Greek spokesman said that the Italian retreat was general from Lake Ochrida to the sea, and that Greek bayonet charges had won new fortified heights.

The Greek press answered an Italian radio assertion that Greek bayonet fighting is "a barbarous form of warfare," commenting:

"Bayonet fighting is certainly less barbarous than using Italian bombing planes against non-combatants. . . . It is not our fault if the enemy lacks the courage of soul against these bayonet charges."

At the same time, British military experts cautioned that the Greek advance henceforth must be at a slower pace, because:

1. The Greeks are fighting on strange soil.
2. Their lines of communications are longer, and they have not had time to organize them.

Observers in Egypt predicted that, as a result of Greece's surprising successes against the Italian invasion, Great Britain's armies would carry the fight to the Axis in southeast Europe.

Cairo dispatches said that, while any plans the British might have for moving troops into Greece were being kept secret, it was regarded as certain that any move by the Axis—such as a German thrust into Turkey or through Bulgaria into Greece—would bring a swift countermove by the British.

In the Rumanian town of Alba Julia, Premier Gen. Ion Antonescu yesterday assured 100,000 cheering Iron Guardists that Germany and Italy had showed "understanding" of Rumania's desire to regain Hungarian-occupied Transylvania.

It was the 22nd anniversary of Rumania's acquisition of the territory, a World war gain. Hungary regained half of it by an Axis-dictated agreement last summer.

Beaverbrook Asks More U. S. Help

LONDON —(AP)— The Evening Standard, paper published by Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, urged "the people of the United States" today to consider giving Britain credits and "further help" in the Atlantic.

The paper asked the recruiting of unused resources of the automobile industry for aircraft manufacture and for "specific" measures of assistance in the operation of our blockade." Victory, it said, depends on the "battle for America."

It said the "dominating fact of this war" was that "Hitler's only hope of victory resides in his power to hold America out of the ring when he gets us in a corner and pummels us to pieces with his existing superior resources of metal."

Not Surprised at American Stand

TOKYO —(INS)— Announcement that the United States will decline to recognize the new Japanese-sponsored Chinese government at Nankin was called "just what we expected" by a Japanese foreign office spokesman today.

Commenting on this and on the American decision to grant further loans to the Chiang Kai-Shek regime at Chungking, the spokesman remarked:

"It's just what we expected, nothing surprising. It's the same dear old attitude of the United States. We have nothing to say. The next move is up to Nanking."

Flood Control In Ohio Delayed By Defense Program

WASHINGTON—(AP)— President Roosevelt's desire to concentrate as far as possible all resources on armed preparedness may sidetrack Ohio flood control legislation in the next congress.

Such legislation in the present congress was shunted aside at the request of the president, who intimated he hoped congress would discourage high expenditures for public works not directly affecting military defenses.

However, Chairman Whittington (D-Miss.) has announced he would reintroduce legislation recommended by the house flood control committee authorizing works to cost $191,000,000, including $30,000,000 in the Ohio valley.

NIMRODS HUNT WITH ARROWS

Pennsylvania Opens Season on Deer for Hunters.

HARRISBURG, Pa. —(AP)— A handful of hunters armed with bow and arrows and a sprinkling of nimrods who prefer old muzzle-loading rifles mingled with other sportsmen today as the first statewide deer season on both does and bucks opened to continue until Dec. 24.

One group, using muzzle loaders, is coming from Ohio into the big game country around Williamsport, the game commission reported.

A scarcity of natural forage in some sections, and an over-abundance of deer, impelled the commission to open the season to hunting of all deer except those with only a visible spike antler or antlers without points. The limit is one to a hunter.

P. A. B. WIDENER SNUBS SOCIAL PHILADELPHIA IN LATEST BOOK

PHILADELPHIA —(INS)— Just as he did 21 years ago at this city's swank and ultra-exclusive Assembly Ball, P. A. B. Widener, second, has snubbed Philadelphia society again in his autobiography, "Without Drums."

The grandson of a butcher boy who became one of America's wealthiest men, the 45-year-old Widener used his first book to attack the "snobbery" of Philadelphia's blue-blooded society and to record his family's one-time feud with the city's social aristocracy.

"I wanted to set myself up as a horrible example of what an empty existence it is to be a son of great wealth, sheltered from reality and surrounded by a sea of snobbery," explained the present guardian of the huge Widener fortune.

"And I wanted also to expose that foolish sort of snobbery that went on under the name of society. And, if I may say so, Philadelphia was worse in that respect than any other city. But that kind of snobbery is going out, thank heavens."

Donated Art Collection.

Publication of "Without Drums" incidentally revealed that the noted art collection of Widener's father, Joseph E. Widener, internationally-known art connoisseur and sportsman, will be donated to the Nationally Gallery of Art in Washington. The collection has been valued at from $12,000,000 to $50,000,000.

Regarded as the finest privately owned group of paintings in the world, it contains the best selection of Rembrandts and Van Dycks ever owned by a single individual, according to art critics. Among the pictures is Rembrant's, "The Mill," pronounced by the noted authority, Dr. William Bode, as "the greatest picture by any artist" and valued at $500,000.

In his book, the young Widener relates how the family battle with the city's social registrites began with the marriage of his parents.

"Back in the nineties Philadelphia raised its eyebrows when mother married father," he said. "She had committed an unpardonable faux pas. She had married across the tracks. As Ella Pancoast, daughter of one of the oldest families of Philadelphia, mother had always attended the Assembly (an annual ball dating from Colonial times and since then restricted to the city's 'best families.')

"As Mrs. Joseph E. Widener she was never again invited to the Assembly Ball."

Social Snub Rankled.

Widener then described the indifference of his grandfather the first P. A. B. Widener, to the social snub, but how the memory of it rankled within Joseph E. Widener's breast.

"Later," he recounted, "when father had entertained and been entertained by princes and the nobility of Europe and by society leaders in other American cities, Philadelphia opened its doors. And I, 24 and bristling with a new democracy learned in the war, paid off, as I thought, an old score."

The occasion came, Widener relates, when his father was asked by some of the "Assembly crowd" to serve in a civic enterprise. Young "Pete's" sister, Fifi, had made her debut, but had been "overlooked" when invitations to the Assembly were sent out.

Widener's father refused in a huff, pointing out the slight to his daughter. Shortly thereafter an invitation came to Fifi to appear at the exclusive dance. The elder Widener was delighted and "Pete" was selected to escort his sister. At the Assembly one of the hosts approached the young couple and welcomed them with a flattering speech.

Spoke Up Heatedly.

"But it failed to assuage or cajole," Widener wrote. "I spoke out in hot-headed reply.

"'I know we're not wanted,' I said to him and I laughed shortly. He looked thunderstruck. There was a tittet from others who had overheard. But no titter could stop me now. 'I'm only accompanying my sister,' I rushed on, 'or I wouldn't be here.' . . . I enjoyed calling a slight a slight." Early in the evening he and Fifi left to find more fun and excitement at a mid-city hostelry.

The Widener art collection, now housed at the family mansion, "Lynnewood Hall," in suburban Elkins Park, was donated to a Washington instead of a Philadelphia gallery in belief that it would be accessible to larger crowds of visitors, the democratic "Pete" explained.

Part of the collection is expected to be moved to the capital soon after the National Gallery is opened next Spring. The remainder is to stay at "Lynnewood Hall" until the elder Widener's death.

RECOGNIZED

LONDON—(U.P.)—Great Britain has recognized "de facto" both Gen. Charles De Gaulle, head of the "Free French" movement, and his defense council, an authoritative source said today. It was said semi-officially that they were recognized as "allies," but not as the French government.

SABOTAGE SEEN MURDER MOTIVE

FBI Enters Investigation of Bludgeon Slaying of Two Springfield Men.

(By United Press)

SPRINGFIELD—Sabotage was revived today as a possible motive in the unsolved four-week-old slaying of two employes in the engine plant of the National Supply company.

Police Chief George A. Abele disclosed that the federal bureau of investigation has entered the case to explore the possible sabotage angles. The company manufactures Deisel engines for marine use and had been filling government defense orders.

It was three weeks ago early yesterday that Jesse E. Ray, 51-year-old machinist, and Fred A. Frior, 44-year-old watchman, were bludgeoned to death while on duty in the factory.

Since then, local authorities have questioned several persons but have yet to reveal any important clue that might lead to solution of the brutal slayings.

Chief Abele said that FBI agents from Cincinnati had visited the murder scene and had studied transcripts of statement from persons questioned. He quoted the FBI as saying the case is "very deep" and will require inquiry.

Sabotage was discarded as a theoretical motive early in the local investigation which has focused upon a possible "grudge" motive.

YOU CAN GET A
LOAN OF $100
IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $4.46 A MONTH

No endorsers or guarantors needed—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Your loan promptly arranged in a brief, private interview

WOULD you like to get a cash loan without having to ask friends or relatives for a favor? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $500—without endorsers or guarantors—if you can make small monthly payments on your loan. We require no stocks or bonds. At Household Finance you borrow on your own signature; your friends are not asked to sign the papers with you.

Choose your own payment plan

See, in the table below, how you may repay your loan in convenient monthly installments which fit your own income. You may repay in small installments spread over 30 months. Or you may repay sooner to reduce the charges.

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will see, for instance, that monthly installments of $9.46 each will repay a $100 loan in full in 12 months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $4.46 a month for 30 months will also repay a $100 loan.

Same rate to everyone

Installments in the table cover everything. They include charges at Household's rate of 2% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $300 and ½% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $300. This rate is less than the maximum prescribed by the Small Loan Law. Household has only this one rate—the same for everyone, whether new customer or former borrower.

No one else need know

When you borrow at Household, there is no need to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) So that your loan may remain your private affair, we do not ask friends or relatives about your credit. If you should be faced with sickness or unemployment while paying on a loan, Household will show you every consideration. Last year we foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 20,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

If a loan will help you, you are urged to look at the table again. Then phone or visit us for further information. You will be under no obligation to borrow.

Several Considered for Ambassador to Great Britain

DELAY LIKELY IN SELECTION OF NEW ENVOY

Kennedy Resignation Leaves Further Gap In Foreign Service of U. S.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The resignation of Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to Great Britain, made a fresh gap today in the war-depleted ranks of United States ambassadors to European nations.

Kennedy announced that he was relinquishing the London post after a White House conference with President Roosevelt yesterday. Pending appointment of a successor—a choice likely to be delayed—Kennedy said Mr. Roosevelt desired him to keep his designation as ambassador, but the envoy made plain he would not return to England in that capacity.

Kennedy's resignation, which had been in the president's hands since Nov. 6, predated by a single day that of William C. Bullitt as ambassador to France. John Cudahy resigned last Thursday as ambassador to Belgium.

At present the United States has only two ambassadors at their posts in Europe, Laurence A. Steinhardt in Soviet Russia and Alexander Weddell in Spain.

Kennedy's resignation from the London post he held since 1938 started speculation both as to his successor and as to whether he might be given some other government office The resignation did not come as a surprise for it was preceded by a number of such reports which the state department refused to confirm.

Several names have been mentioned for the post. Among those spoken of were Marshall Field, Chicago merchant who has been active in the work of bringing child refugees here; John G. Winant, former governor of New Hampshire and one-time social security head who is now a director of the international labor office; Ray Atherton, a career diplomat now acting chief of the European division of the state department and a former counsellor at the London ambassy, and former Ambassador Bullitt

As for Kennedy's future, the retiring ambassador spoke only in general terms in his statement announcing the resignation.

"My plan is, after a short holiday," he said, "to devote by efforts to what seems to me the greatest cause in the world today, and means, if successful, the preservation of the American form of democracy. That cause is to help the president keep the United States out of war."

Dynamite Stolen In Pennsylvania

BANGOR, Pa —(AP)— Theft of 880 sticks of dynamite and 8,000 blasting caps from a storage magazine near Bangor was disclosed today by Assistant County Detective John Ruppert who said the missing explosive was "enough to blow this town off the map."

The detective said authorities were interested in finding the explosive primarily because of its "potential danger" but also because "it might be used for purposes of sabotage."

The theft was discovered last Tuesday morning, but was kept quiet, Ruppert said, because it was hoped to make arrests soon. To date, no real clues have been found, he added.

The explosive was taken during the night from three storage buildings about a mile and one-quarter from this eastern Pennsylvania town of 6,000 population. It was owned by Robert Bruch, of Bangor, who held it there for resale to slate quarries.

President Plans Defense Tour

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt plans to leave town for an extended trip for the first time since the national conventions of last summer, but when he would leave and where he would go remained well-kept White House secrets today.

All indications were that some announcement would be forthcoming shortly, but the only word from the presidential staff was Secretary Early's comment that "you will have to continue to speculate on where the president is going."

Best unofficial surmises were that the chief executive would embark at some southern point for a cruise that would give him both a brief vacation from White House routine and an opportunity to inspect some defense work in the Caribbean area.

Two of the boys have juvenile court records, it was learned. Authorities said charges would be filed later today and the trio probably would be arraigned in municipal court Tuesday morning.

REFUGEES FLEE TERROR REIGN

Green Shirts Defy Premier, Start New Outbreaks In Blood Purge.

(By International News Service)

BUDAPEST—Dodging rifle fire from Rumanian frontier forces, hundreds of refugees from Rumanian Iron Guard terrorism have paddled in crowded, half-swamped canoes across the Danube river into Bulgaria, according to reports in Budapest today.

Pitiful stories poured into this city, telling of men, women and children, terrified of Iron Guard violence, climbing through windows in their night-clothes to escape roving bands of the Green Shirts and then crossing the river in tiny craft.

Many of the refugees who left their homes and most of their possessions in the dead of night were said to have been killed by Rumanian border guards as they sought sanctuary.

Others drowned as their unseaworthy craft capsized in the river rapids. Those who survived owed their lives to the darkness. Penniless and hungry, those who reached the Bulgarian shore were placed under charge of Bulgarian authorities Many of the refugees were government employees and many were Jews.

The mass flight coincided with reports of a new but brief earthquake in Bucharest yesterday which increased the alarm of residents of the Rumanian capital.

While the earth shook to the tremors of nature, the Iron Guard went forward with its deadly work. Apparently reliable but officially unconfirmed reports said two more Rumanian ex-premiers, Ion Gigurtu and George Bratianu, were said to have been seized from protective custody by Iron Guardists and slain.

According to some reports King Michael left the royal palace in Bucharest Friday night and sought refuge in a secret hide-out in the country under German and Rumanian military protection.

New outbreaks were reported in the Black Sea port of Constanza, the Danube delta port of Galatz and the oil city of Ploesti.

At Ploesti, in defiance of Premier Ion Antonescu and Vice Premier Horia Sima, Iron Guard leader, dissident Iron Guardists were said to be holding out in seized public buildings.

Britain Negotiates for 360 Merchant Vessels.

NEW YORK —(AP)— The Wall Street Journal said today representatives of the British government in this country were negotiating plans for a program of building about 360 merchant ships in United States shipyards at a cost of approximately $750,000,000.

The program, the newspaper suggested, may rival the "bridge of ships" built by the United States shipping board during the World war.

Leon Blum, former French Premier, is extremely proud of his newspaper work as dramatic critic.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1940.

If all the people behaved as well as some of the people there'd be no need for more policemen.

Dictators work together all right when planning conquest but show signs of falling apart when it comes to dividing the spoils.

Walter-Logan Bill Doomed

SENATE adoption of the Walter-Logan bill, in the face of practically assured veto by President Roosevelt, is considered one of the most curious political maneuvers in recent history.

The purpose of the much discussed Walter-Logan bill is to restore the right of appeal to the courts against arbitrary decisions of such federal bureaus as the labor board and the securities commission.

Already passed by the house, before election, the senate had quietly shelved the measure, apparently having anticipated adjournment before there would be need for action.

Expressed public sentiment, however, was so strongly in favor of enactment of the measure that finally, a few days ago, it was called up and passed by a narrow margin—despite administration opposition.

The Walter-Logan bill is so out of accord with New Deal policies of unrestrained power for federal bureaus that President Roosevelt's veto is confidently anticipated by its opponents, who have no fear that customary court safeguards will be permitted to hamper bureaucratic exercise of unintended powers.

As discussed in Person and Allen's Washington Merry-Go-Round article today, senate passage of the bill might even have been with administration sanction, in order that President Roosevelt could be placed in a position to accompany his veto with a "scorching blast" directed at supporters of the measure.

Community Players Hold Spotlight

MANSFIELD again finds itself in the national spotlight, this time through the medium of a "home talent show"—which would ordinarily attract little attention outside the city limits.

But on this occasion, ladies and gentlemen, "the program will be different," and Mansfield Community Players suddenly and surprisingly find themselves nationally publicized in magazines, big-city newspapers, and over the radio.

This all comes about because, a few years ago, Louie Bromfield and his secretary-manager, George Hawkins, took time to write a comedy drama, "Here Today, Gone Tomorrow," which they put aside for awhile but dug up several months ago to revamp as a suitable offering for this season's opening of the Community Players annual series.

Louis Bromfield, as you may have already heard, is a home town boy, born here December 27, 1896 and a graduate of Mansfield high school, class of 1914. Rapidly approaching a birthday anniversary after which even better work may be anticipated, Bromfield has already attained considerable national prominence as a writer and, more recently in motion pictures—for which he has taken time out from his preferred vocation as a Richland county farmer.

So, through a combination of circumstances which could not have been anticipated when the doctor said, "It's a boy," at the Bromfield home, 323 West Third street, on that December day in 1896, John Simpson Junior high school auditorium will be jammed to the doors tomorrow night and Wednesday night to see local talent present "Here Today, Gone Tomorrow."

Another Unfinished Job

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS direct attention to the unfinished condition in which the surface of the new Bowman street bridge has been left from spring to winter.

This stretch of roadway, a short distance north of Sixth street, is full of chuckholes and has been a nuisance to motorists for a number of months.

Commissioners say the surfacing over the new bridge was to have been done by the city as soon as the fresh earth had settled over the arch—which would have been several months ago, as the bridge was opened to traffic last May.

The public is not particularly concerned as to who is responsible for the bridge surface having been left so long in a rough, unfinished condition. People do recognize, however, that this is another example of slipshod handling of public business and wonder how such matters can be corrected.

Canada Welcomes U. S. Visitors

CANADA continues to emphasize the ease with which residents of the United States can go back and forth across the border and suggests that opportunities and comfort of travel in Canada have not changed because of the war.

It appears that persons who have been accustomed to making either winter or summer trips to Canada, or any who may plan to do so, need have no hesitancy about crossing and recrossing the border, as the Canadian government and civic authorities are more eager than ever to have visitors from the United States.

This is explained by the fact that Canada needs all the war materials that can be bought from the United States but that purchases are limited to the amount of American exchange available. We are reminded, also, that a United States dollar is worth $1.10 in Canada.

This subject is again made timely by an impression that has been gained in Canada that many false stories are afield in the United States regarding the difficulties of travel in Canada."

Avalanches Made To Order

A BRIEF DISPATCH from Norway says [illegible] that the disarmed and bedraggled Norwegians are far from beaten. It tells of a series of avalanches [illegible] at carefully planned intervals along important highways and railroads. The spacing and timing of these disasters [illegible] the planned action of men rather than nature. It will take weeks of work to restore normal rail transportation. Extra military guards have been placed upon all highways and railroads to prevent future avalanches.

If patriotic Norwegians have found a way to harass the conqueror's forces they are not going to be wholly deterred from their purpose by added watchfulness on the part of the Nazi masters.

John L. Lewis should at least be credited with living up to a campaign promise.

IF RED RIDINGHOOD SHOULD GET BY THE WOLVES

Big Job Ahead for Vice President

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WHILE the Democrats will start off, in the new congress, with a net gain of seven seats in the house of representatives, they'll start with net loss of four senate seats.

Henry Wallace

The two alterations don't amount to much as a mere matter of figures. Aunty Democracy still will have more than a 2-1 senate majority, so her small loss will hardly signify. And her representatorial majority already was so huge that her gain in that congressional branch won't appreciably strengthen her.

But there's another division to be reckoned with—the division between anti-New Deal Democrats and Republicans on one side, and pro-New Deal Democrats on the opposite side.

The pro-New Deal Democrats will continue to be New Dealers. The Republicans are pretty sure to remain "antis," except on the subject of national defense. The anti-New Deal Democrats, however, are quite a problem. Hitherto they and the Republicans, combined, have constituted an anti-Roosevelt majority on a good many issues.

Now considering the recent popular vote of confidence in F. D. R.'s administration will the anti-New Deal Democrats group fall in line, more or less, with New Deal policies? If it does so the New Deal will have its own way in almost all particulars. If not, the New Dealers will go on having their troubles. Nobody can guess the answer until the new legislative body assembles and begins proceedings.

Everything but Defense.

As previously remarked, there'll be no quarrel relative to national defense. The rookus, if any, will relate to domestic questions—economics, labor, agriculture, etc.

Here Vice President-elect Henry A. Wallace enters into the equation.

There's a deal of talk to the purport that President Roosevelt plans to concentrate upon Uncle Sam's foreign relationships, turning over to Henry the job of handling the executive end of our domestic administration.

If Henry can swing the assignment competently, he may prove to be quite a sufficient New Deal asset to more than offset the loss of those four senate seats.

Up to John N. Garner's time, the vice president never was of any national consequence, except occasionally when one of them was called on to vote to break a senate tie or gravitated, due to his chief's death, into the presidential office. Garner, though, quickly developed into a weighty political influence. But Garner has been an anti-New Dealer; a Rooseveltian liability, not an asset.

Henry Wallace is a New Dealer par excellence.

In that respect he fills the bill. It remains only to be seen whether or not he can deliver the goods as a liaison officer between the White House and the Capitol—in fact, as almost a domestic (not a foreign relations) president.

Wallace Is Affable.

Henry's an affable personality. He doesn't antagonize anybody, even those who disagree with him. He's able, too, in his way. He argues well economically, is a labor liberal and understands agriculture, at least theoretically. He conducted a nice, clean campaign, with no mud-slinging.

But he needs to be a superpolitician, too, to transform those congressional "antis" into as good New Dealers as Vice President Garner headed them in the opposite direction. That he's got that quality in him?—q. e. d.

Anyway, if F. D. R. really has it in mind to wish the New Deal's domestics off onto the incoming vice president, while retaining foreign affairs within his own province, he's handling over by far the hottest of the two potatoes to Henry.

Health and Diet

Join the Fight On Tuberculosis.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ONCE more the Christmas seals of the National Tuberculosis association go on sale this week. Every year they come to remind us that we are winning the battle against this old enemy of mankind, but that it takes continuous and unremitting effort. Every year the money from these stamps goes to help finance the efforts of the local branches of the National association in their many activities, surveys of the community in order to catch incipient cases of tuberculosis; open air schools in order to strengthen the resistance of children susceptible to tuberculosis and prevent its development, the care of those who have the disease developed, and the protection of those who may be exposed to the contagion.

Disease's Role in History.

Tuberculosis has played an important part in history. Famous people who have had tuberculosis include:

In literature, Schiller, Keats, Byron, Thoreau, Bronte, Moliere and Robert Louis Stevenson.

In music, Chopin, Paganini and [illegible].

In art, Raphael.

In philosophy, Voltaire, St. Thomas of Assisi and John [illegible].

In statesmen, Cicero, Cecil Rhodes, Sir [illegible] Lord Nelson and [illegible].

In science, Descartes, Pasteur and Luther Burbank.

In medicine, Laennec, Fothergill, Bright, Bush and Trudeau.

Some medical philosophers think of tuberculosis [illegible] They believe that the toxins of the germ stimulate certain kinds of personality in order to make them produce their best work. Perhaps such men as Keats and Stevenson would not have been so inspired had it not been for the tubercle bacillus. Others deny any typical "temperamental results from this combination.

Certainly most persons who harbor the tubercle bacillus do not rise to any such heights as those of Raphael or Chopin. No one can afford to take the risk of not having the geniuses in order to bend our efforts towards getting the better of this disease.

Modern Views of Tuberculosis.

In some of my articles during the coming two or three weeks, I shall take occasion to discuss the modern view of tuberculosis as held by the most alert workers in the field today and what their plan of campaign is. We are vitally interested in this subject on account of the men going into the new army. We wish to be sure we have no tuberculosis patients among them.

I shall discuss also the work on the prevention of tuberculosis in schools and the modern methods of treatment and detection of cases in the general civil adult population. Leaving the problem of the soldier out, the two main attacks of the National Tuberculosis Association nowadays are on the treatment of school children in an attempt to stop the disease before it gets a head start and second to remove open cases of [illegible] tuberculosis in the civil [illegible] so that they do not [illegible] others and can have proper [illegible].

As Others See It

Veto Awaits Walter-Logan Bill, Also Scorching Blast From FDR

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—You can put it down as certain that the president will not give the Walter-Logan bill a pocket veto; that is, let it die without comment. He will veto it with a scorching blast.

Some of Roosevelt's congressional chiefs want a pocket veto so as not to stir up another battle. They argue that it is best to let sleeping dogs lie. But Roosevelt doesn't see it that way.

He considers the Walter-Logan bill an adroit scheme by big business to scuttle major New Deal reforms through legalistic obstructions, after failing to lick them at the polls and in the supreme court. Among the brickbats Roosevelt will heave at the bill will be these:

1. That it will block the defense program by permitting manufacturers to tie the government's hands in pushing production.

2. That the bill, which professes to give hearings to complainants, actually was jammed through congress without a hearing on its merits.

3. That the bill was passed by a vote of less than one-third of the senate when only one-half of the chamber was present. The vote was 27 to 25.

4. That the real purpose of the legislation is to destroy the National Labor Relations Board, Wage-Hour Division, and Securities and Exchange Commission.

5. That the bill was drafted by big business interests and put through by a corps of lobbyists, supported by a nationwide campaign of misrepresentation as to its real nature and purpose.

Aid for Greece.

THE mail sack arriving at the Greek legation these mornings at last is showing evidence of popular support for the Greek cause. Letters are pouring in, many with enclosures of cash.

A Mississippi school teacher sends five dollars; an unknown man from Arkansas sends six dollars; Oscar L. Johnson and Harry L. Carpel, both of Washington, send $100 each. The total has reached $40,000, all forwarded to New York, where a special committee is handling contributions.

One letter comes from a retired army engineer in Atlanta, who says, "I could still pass for forty," and asks to enlist in the Greek army. In New Brunswick, N. J., a group of young aviators who flew for Finland now want to fly for Greece.

Authors of these letters got answers signed by the longest name in Washington's diplomatic corps—Diamantopoulos. He is the minister of Greece, and he gratefully accepts both the money and the men. No sort of aid is rejected in Greece's hour of need.

New Mexican President.

DISPATCHES about the inauguration yesterday of Mexico's new president, Manuel Avila Camacho, said nothing of his mother, who stands upright in her grave in the state of Puebla.

Senora Comacho de Avila, mother of four sons, was one of the most colorful and dynamic women in the history of Mexico. She died only a year ago, and her last words were to direct that she should be buried upright in the ground. "The Avila Camachos," she said, "have always stood on their feet."

Accordingly, the coffin was put into the ground in an upright position, in the town of Tezuitlan, state of Puebla.

The people of that state needed no such graphic action to remember her. For her sons will not allow her to be forgotten. One now becomes president of the country. Another, Maximino Avila Camacho, is governor of the state of Puebla, actually is a stronger figure than the president.

He is the Mussolini of Mexico—physically powerful, lusty and unscrupulous. The owner of 100 full blooded horses and an amateur bull fighter, he stages private bull fights for the amusement of distinguished visitors.

Chances are that it is this mother's son, rather than Manuel, who will run the government of Mexico.

Bomb Scares.

STORIES of bomb plots and foreign sabotage have made officials of the United States government just a bit jittery, and apparently, G-men now are making a nightly examination of the halls of congress. Here are the results of two such bomb-scare investigations:

Bomb Scare No. 1: At 10 p. m. Saturday night; not a creature stirring in the house press gallery, except the correspondent of a local paper diligently pounding out an "overnight" story for an early morning edition.

Suddenly there was an eerie noise in the rear, as of a door being surreptitiously opened, followed by a soft shuffling. The newsman investigated, found a strange youth poking around under some desks.

"Hey, what are you doing here?" demanded the reporter.

The mysterious visitor silently flashed an FBI badge, silently continued his searchings.

"What's up? Bomb?" asked the reporter, recalling a recent story that a stick of dynamite had been found near the senate garage. The G-man shot him a cryptic look, and continued his probing.

This confirmed the newsman's worst fears. "Say," he exclaimed, heading for the door, "let me out of here."

"Don't get excited," called the G-man. "I'm just making a regular inspection."

By this time the G-man had reached the stationery closet, which he proceeded to examine thoroughly, finally emerging with a dark, glistening object.

"You newspaper guys," he grinned, "are all alike."

"Hey, put that bottle back," shouted the reporter. "That's our early morning supply.

Bomb Scare No. 2: Inside story of that Charleston (Boston) navy yard dynamite scare, which caused hundreds of women workers to be searched, is that someone was drunk.

What happened was that the officer of the day received a telephone call that the yard would be blown up the next day. The officer kept the conversation going, but meanwhile got police to trace the call and arrest the man.

Investigation disclosed that he was an employe of the yard, that he was drunk, and once had been an inmate of a mental institution.

However, to take no chances, navy and police officials decided to search all workers the next morning.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—What's your nationality? Now, stop and think. Can you prove it?

What's your age? Stop and think again. Can you prove it? With ladies of indeterminate age, that has been a question that has provided more Joe Millers than has the mother-in-law or the traveling salesman. But as strange as it may seem, there are thousands of Americans who can't prove their nationality and hundreds of thousands who—if they know how old they are—can't prove it.

In spite of the fact that this is probably the most statistical era of all time, this great void in the American knowledge of facts and figgers might never have come to light if it weren't for the Census Bureau. That division of the government, which is charged with enumerating the peoples of our nation, is discovering that if it takes an army to enumerate, it takes at least a sizeable battalion to answer the questions: How old am I? Where was I born?

At the rate of 1,500 to 2,000 a day, letters have been pouring into the Census Bureau for weeks asking verification of these two facts. The flood has been such that there has been no chance yet to analyze it—to separate the queries into classifications that might define just what is going on. But on the basis of superficial observation, there are some things that can be said right now—

* * *

Jobs Threatened.

NOT only in the government but in private industry, there is a house-cleaning move to purge all aliens. Of the thousands of letters the Census Bureau is receiving, asking proof of citizenship, by far the greater per cent explain that the writer MUST have this information immediately to hold his job. For one reason or another (accent or appearance, to name only two) the author writes, he is suspected of being an alien. He knows that the Census Bureau can clear this up. Will they please do so at once, so he won't get fired?

Just what percentages of these requests come from private industry or from the government where laws already passed forbid employment of undeclared aliens in many departments, has not yet been determined, but it is certain that lots of private employers are scanning their payrolls and weeding out the foreign-born who have not taken out papers.

An even greater number of letters fall into the Census Bureau mail baskets from persons trying to find out how old they are. Most of these came originally from persons seeking old age pensions. But the draft swamped the bureau. The compulsory filing of birth certificates is comparatively recent and even where it has been a practice for years, hundreds of communities have seen their records lost through carelessness and indifference or destroyed by fire, floods or winds.

* * *

Validity Established.

THROUGH the courts, validity of the Census Bureau statistics has been established. It has been proved that army papers, passports, civil service records and other official papers filed under oath sometimes lie, but Census Bureau records checked and double-checked over the years, rarely fail to disclose the truth. Private citizens, the government and the courts all have come to rely on the arithmetic of Census Bureau facts, accounting for [illegible] mixed.

To avoid this dumping the Census Bureau has [illegible] regulations for preserving these questionnaires—but don't try to get one of these just by writing in for it.

Census Bureau information on individuals is available only to those individuals. The bureau already has had its round and around about the secrecy of its information on individuals, and not even J. Edgar Hoover and his G-men could get it without the permission of the person involved [illegible] which is sort of tops in hush-hushing.

A Farmer's Diary

Ice Storm

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

AT DAWN light clouds sifted across the eastern sky. There were no stars. Instead there moved soft scarlet streaks that pointed upward like something living. Beyond the reddening glow, the morning dusk was heavy and hung like sable shrouds far down the western sky. It seemed like livid painting on a great inverted bowl.

The wind blew from the east—cold raw uncertain blasts. I saw the blue wood smoke sheared off close to the western edge of the chimney top. It lowered toward the ground, in ragged torn patches. In another hour the red, the pink, the mauve had faded out of sight. No sun was seen. A dark impending cloud had covered all the sky. I felt the threat of rain in the chilly atmosphere.

Cattle bunched up in the barnyard, shivering. Chickens huddled beneath the storm shed. Crows flew silently across our narrow valley.

Snow, rain and sleet began to fall, together. Tiny ice pellets danced the frosty crust of earth while falling snow and rain mixed in iron gray slush. Trees soon were coated with thick glassy armor. Branches and clumps of alder were richly coated with brilliant pearls. Blades of grass upon the lawn were several times their actual size, bent westward stiffly with their crystal burden.

With every gale that passed our line of maples I heard the splintering snapping sheets of ice rip about the swaying tops and send jagged zigzag cracks far down the trunks. Neighboring roofs were smooth and shiny with icicles hanging in a fringe below the eaves. The many wires along the highway hung like glistening translucent ropes festooned between the poles.

Common things had become unreal—the very day had an atmosphere that was different and mysterious. We seemed to have been, somehow, translated in one hour into a world of glass. For a little while it grew in awesomeness and wonder. Then the wind changed. I noticed that the icy coat had left the eastern windows. Thaw had begun.

When morning came again, everything was nearly normal. Water ran in little streams, the spring was high, and the ice storm was only a brief and vivid memory.

Entertains Friends At Birthday Party

Robert Troll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Troll, 430 Glessner avenue, entertained Saturday in celebration of his tenth birthday. The accompanying picture was taken at the party. Shown seated in the front from left to right are Edwin Cook, David Ganyard, Robert Troll, Elmer Croushore, and Danny Bishop. The boys in the second row are Jimmy Shelley, Harry Osborn, Bob Rice, Dick Poffenbaugh and Rodney Blahnik.

Varied Activities Offer Diversion For Mansfielders

THE first dinner dance of the season was conducted Saturday evening at the Mansfield-Leland hotel by the University club with more than 150 members and guests present. Music was provided by Harry Martin and his Columbus orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schweir were hosts for the affair. Among the party groups were those including the J. J. Kindels, the Dr. C. L. Shafers, the W. B. Gay Suggestions For Christmas Bridal Presents

What shines brighter than the lights on a Christmas tree?

Well, two things—a big solitaire in an engagement ring, and the eyes of a bride at a candlelight wedding in December.

This year the marriage rate has been mounting steadily all over the country. Now with so many boys home on holiday leave from training camp, or facing their selective service call sometime after January 1, there are bound to be more Christmas wedding bells.

There's a nice sentiment about including some of the Christmas symbols in a December trousseau. Little ermine tails, with their wintry look, are charming in a tulle veil, and did you ever think of mingling waxy white berries with full-blown white roses in a bridal bouquet?

Diamond Mistletoe.

Maybe you think a bride doesn't need to wear mistletoe in her cap when she has already set it and won! But a famous Fifth Avenue jeweler has created a spray of pearl and diamond mistletoe for the bride's headdress to remind her ever after of her Christmas wedding. Another innovation for winter brides is a big, soft, shirred tulle muff instead of a bouquet. On the muff she wears white orchids pinned with a diamond bow-knot—the wedding gift of the bridegroom.

Don't hesitate to give your bridesmaids big bouquets of scarlet flowers, and dress them in white or pastel green for a December wedding. In England, just before the war, the sister of a young duke was married in Westminster Abbey. She used red and white as her color scheme and it was superb. The eight bridesmaids wore white taffeta dresses and carried round bouquets of red and white carnations tied with wide red ribbon. For an American red-an-white wedding, why not use arm sleeves of poinsettias for your bridesmaids and a white basket of freshest Southern holly for the flower girl?

English brides are partial to lilies for their personal bouquets. Their gowns are usually classic white satin like ours, but they are more sentimental about wearing jewelry, especially heirlooms. An English girl who inherits family diamonds for her new life and social position will often wear a lovely necklace or a brooch of rose-cut diamonds on her wedding day. She may even wear earrings.

Bracelet Matches Ring.

In our country, jewelers are beginning to design personal ornaments of precious stones that a well-disposed uncle, auntie, or godmother may bestow on the bride, in lieu of a check. A diamond and ruby clip, for instance, is not as readily "cashed" and spent. But the intrinsic value is there, along with the glitter and glamour of wearing the jewels.

Another gift of immediate vogue and lasting value is the bracelet to match the engagement ring. The diamonds should be the same in shape and cut and the ring and bracelet should be of matching metal. The bracelet is worn on the left wrist, and together with the wedding band, forms a jewelry ensemble of importance and good taste.

HOSTESS' BEST FRIEND

Several bottles of carbonated beverages stored in the refrigerator are the hostess' best friend when people drop in unexpectedly for a rubber of bridge.

Reserve Alumnae Plan Tea for Senior Girls

Arrangements have been completed by members of the Western Reserve Alumnae association for a tea to be held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. H. Finefrock, 766 Park avenue west, for high school senior women who are interested in attending the university, and their mothers.

The affair will be held at 3:30 p. m., and girls from Galion, Shelby and Ashland have also been invited. Arrangements are in charge of Mrs. R. J. Welsh, Mrs. W. E. Slabaugh and Mrs. D. W. Horton. The traveling representative of the university will be here and show movies of the campus, the farm, and student activities.

SET MEETING.

Members of the Willing Workers society of the Little Washington church will have an all-day meeting and covered-dish dinner Thursday with Mrs. Howard Stone. The day will be spent in quilting and Red Cross sewing.

CRANBERRY SAUCE

Clever homemakers, with an eye to the future, are going to satisfy that longing for fresh cranberry sauce this year regardless of the season. A check by the Modern Home Institute of food trends shows that locker patrons and home users of deep-freezing equipment are storing up more cranberries than ever before. The berries, packed in syrup, are ready for instant cooking.

HOW TO THAW FRUIT

Frozen-fresh fruits should be thawed in the original container, the Modern Home Institute advises. If the fruit is melted in the container, the syrup remains in place instead of forming a pool around the outside, which happens when melting is done in an open dish.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas blows up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. 10c and 25c.

Informally Speaking...

Dec. 2, 1940.

Lucy, dear:

IT'S hard to believe that this is the last month of the year already, isn't it? It really seems as though it was only yesterday that I turned over the first leaf of this calendar on my desk, and now it's almost used up.

Marianne

But to turn from the swiftness of time to news of the day—most of it is about Mansfield collegians and what they're doing just now. . . . Frances Ann Coffman writes that she had been elected to the Commercial club of Sullens college down in Bristol, Va. . . . This is quite an honor, because in order to be eligible for membership, a student must have a B average in all subjects, and only 12 junior and senior girls were elected to the group this year. . . . And looking into the future a bit, Dec. 20 will be an exciting day for Frances Ann, as it's her birthday and she's coming home for Christmas vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Coffman.

* * * * *

Marian Birch is a member of the stage committee for "The Juggler of Notre Dame," a miracle play to be presented by Senior Orchesis (a modern dance group) at Ohio Wesleyan university in Delaware on Dec. 11. . . . A traditional Christmas story, the "Juggler" recently was set to music by Bertha Ochsner and now is interpreted through the medium of the modern dance. . . . Marian, you know, is a freshman at the university, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Birch.

* * * * *

Coming a little closer home, Lucy, Margaret Pittenger has just been elected secretary of Alpha Sigma Delta over at Ashland college. . . . This is an educational club on the Ashland campus and is a combination of beginning students in elementary education and secondary education students.

* * * * *

THEN while we're speaking of Ashland, I mustn't forget to tell you about a girl from that town, Lucille Garber, who's a student at Stephens college in Columbia, Mo. . . . She stepped into a new honor there this week when she was chosen president of the folk-music group—a division of Pro Musica, the largest "interest club" on the campus. . . . And believe me, Lucy, this is no light job for Lucille, as the Stephens students take their folk songs and dances seriously—presenting some sort of program or recital nearly every week. . . . Lucille is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Garber, and she is a pledge of Tri Phi sorority and recently appeared in "Drama Time" over the radio station there.

Sister M. Noreen, an instructor at St. Peter's high school, is one of the contributors to the current issue of the Catholic School Journal, which is published in Milwaukee, Wis. . . . In her article, Sister Noreen demonstrated with a number of sketches, how geometry is involved in art.

* * * * *

WEDNESDAY will be an important day for 40 Shriners of this vicinity, as they're boarding a special train at 9:44 that morning in Shelby to go to Cleveland, where they will attend the last ceremonial of the year at the Al Koran temple. . . . Fred Kelly, president, and Earl Bates, secretary, are in charge of the party. . . . And incidentally Lucy, the local Shrine, under the direction of Mr. Kelly, is closing its most successful year since its organization 25 years ago.

* * * * *

Tomorrow night, of course, marks the premiere of the Louis Bromfield-George Hawkins comedy, "Here Today, Gone Tomorrow," and Prof. and Mrs. E. A. Wright are coming up from Denison university with W. E. Wygant, jr. to attend. . . . Prof. Wright is in charge of dramatics at the university in Granville.

GUESS that's all for now, Lucy, so I'll be looking for a letter from you in an early mail.

Lovingly,

Marianne

Be Thankful At Christmas Too

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Over four hundred years ago an English poet, Thomas Tusser, urged his readers

"At Christmas, play and make good cheer,
For Christmas comes but once a year."

Mighty good advice that. We may have lost our illusions about life, but all of us have kept a lingering faith in Santa Claus. If we're human we want to make that one day in the year a little happier for someone else—plenty of someones we find to our amazement as we make up our Christmas lists.

This year Christmas will be a second Thanksgiving day for us all. Our fair land is free of the hideous destruction which has wrecked Europe's thousand years of growth. We can afford to be generous as well as thankful, and among other blessings we rejoice in the purchasing power of a good American dollar.

Looking about the shops as I've been doing for the last two weeks, it seemed to me that the almighty dollar will do more for us this year than ever before.

Take gifts for mother. Have you ever seen anything as reasonable as those lovely housecoats? Quilted, warm, with a generous sweep of skirt, so smartly becoming, a housecoat may be had within the range of the humblest pocketbook. Things to go with a housecoat too — lovely slippers, some just comfy, others fur and feather-trimmed, luxurious to the nth degree.

And mother's housecoat is balanced by father's lounging robe or smoking jacket. If, unlike the hero of that topical song of a decade ago, "He never cares to wander from his own fireside," give him a home-keeping hint. Lots and lots of men wander from their own fireside, because not enough thought is given to make them really comfortable under the domestic roof. Give Dad a good reading lamp or, if you can afford it, a restful chair for his very own—and let it be reserved for him. Give him slippers, cigars, a carton or two of cigarets if he likes them. Give him a pipe, a jar of tobacco, a subscription to his favorite magazine, or some books, if he's the reading kind. Socks and handkerchiefs are always welcome. And if he has a car, something for the car—thermos bottles, water coolers, something to keep.

Now for mother. Dainty undies, lingerie and nighties will solve mother's Christmas problem. How about one of those complexion kits of leather, smartly outfitted with jars and pots of cream and other beautifiers, or an attractive manicure set if mother does her nails at home. All women like nice things for the table. For a couple of dollars you can give china such as Queen Elizabeth never had. Plated ware, if you can't afford solid silver, comes in lovely patterns. And those gay tablecloths, lunch sets, bridge sets, with napkins to match—they make it impossible not to enjoy a cheerful meal.

Gloves and silk stockings—can anyone ever have too many of them? And the useful things like wearing apparel—coats, hats, shoes—are good family gifts.

Now for the children. Please don't let any child go without a present on Christmas day. The hurt of being forgotten may stay with the child indefinitely, sowing the seed of that horrible blight known as inferiority complex. All the other children are displaying their gifts, but the child who has not been remembered will steal away with a hurt in his heart that cannot be lived down.

Don't, if you can possibly afford it, forget the underprivileged child. There are thousands of such living in dark tenements, children of the poor, of the down-and-out. Through your church missions and similar organizations you will be able to make these youngsters happy with some toy from the Five-and-Ten, if you can't afford to spend more. A warm muffler, a pair of gloves, a couple of pairs of stockings, and Christmas is a day of joy to these little ones.

Such giving will help to make it a joy to you also, my friends.

Take Stock Of Child In School

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Now that your child has been in school for several weeks, it might be well to take stock of him.

How about his health? Does he seem to have grown more excitable and irritable? Does he go to sleep promptly? Is he going to bed early enough? Does he play out of doors every day when the weather is fit?

Is he getting on fairly well with other children? Is he a bully? Has he been worried by bullies who intimidate him at school or on the way? Does he come home promptly from school? Does he get himself ready on school mornings and find his own things or do all the family have to help him?

Know Your Child.

Have you had any complaint from his teacher about his conduct at school? Does he seem to be getting on well at school with his lessons? Does he have home work at an earlier age than you think he should? If in the fourth, fifth or sixth grade, does he have long assignments in spelling and arithmetic? Does he get worried over his lessons? When you help him do you grow tense and angry or are you always calm and serene?

So far as the child's behavior at school is concerned, you should try to find out what has happened at home for months and months which might cause such behavior away from home. Then with the aid of the teacher or an expert, try to ascertain what guidance in this child at home might be made during the next few months with the hope of causing after some weeks some improvement in his conduct at school.

Don't Nag.

Still less wise to command the child at home to pay more strict attention at school or study harder there. Therefore, if your child lags in any or all his school subjects, it is not a matter for you to get mad about or to exhort and scold and punish the child. If you really wish to help him, you will try to find out definitely how, when he tries to study, you can contribute toward his success at it.

Hoping to encourage parents to further the child's school learning rather than to hinder it, I have prepared some definite suggestions and materials in reading, spelling and arithmetic. You may have any one of the following, without cost, by writing me at 235 East 45th Street, N. Y. City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it:

1. Home Helps for Poor Readers of Second, Third and Fourth Grades.

2. Home Helps for Poor Readers Above the Fourth Grade.

3. Home Helps for Poor Spellers.

4. The 100 Addition Facts and 100 Subtraction Facts for Child to Learn by Heart.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. How early should you begin to read to the baby?

A. As soon as he will keep looking at a picture for half a minute or so at a stretch. The average child will do so early in his second year. Read to him while he looks. Months earlier you should sing lullabies and say nursery rhymes to him while caring for him. A list of illustrated books from which to read to the baby and young child may be had by writing to me at 235 East 45th Street, N. Y. City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a stamp on it.

Long, slow cooking at a low heat is the general rule for cooking the thrifty cuts of meat. Add some ingenuity and a bit of garnish, and you have a main dish that'll be "tops" with the family.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

There was no holding Lillian down any longer. At my revelation, she pushed my restraining hands aside, and, fairly leaping out of bed, gripped me by the shoulders and put her face close to mine.

"Are you insane or am I?" she demanded. "You say Mrs. Ticer saw her and you didn't. Where was my baby? For God's sake, don't torture me this way."

I did not want to anger her by calling Miss Whitlock, but I did not need to summon the nurse. She evidently had heard those excited tones, for she suddenly materialized—I could think of no other word for her sudden and noiseless coming—beside me, and took Lillian's hands from my shoulders.

"You are hurting Mrs. Graham," she said with calm authority, and I did not protest the mendacious statement, for I knew she had a purpose in saying it. "And you are hurting yourself."

Lillian's eyes flashed unreasoning enmity at her.

"I'd like to hurt you," she said venomously, and I realized how near to the border line her brooding terror had brought her. "You gave me something to put me to sleep while my child is—is—"

She broke into spasmodic tears and sobbing, and Miss Whitlock nodded gravely at me, her eyes mirroring the relief in mine. I swept my friend into my arms and held her closely while her tempest of terror and grief gradually spent itself, and, utterly exhausted, she slumped against my shoulder. Then the nurse, signaling me to help her, expertly lifted her back into bed, and then, with a murmured, "Keep her quiet," went out of the room, returning almost instantly with a glass of cloudy liquid, which she put into my hand.

"This is not an opiate, Mrs. Underwood," she said. "I give you and Mrs. Graham my word on that. But you need it badly."

"Please drink it for me, Lillian," I pleaded, tenderly, and her still obstinate eyes suddenly softened.

"All right," she said weakly, and I steadied the glass against her lips until she had drained it. Then she lay back against her pillows and closed her eyes.

It was less than a minute before Lillian's eyes opened wide, and looked frankly, and with no trace of enmity, at the nurse.

"Please forgive me, Miss Whitlock," she said. "I have been more than half mad with this awful anxiety. Of course I didn't mean a word I said, and of one thing you may be sure, I shall make you no more trouble. I know as well as you do that I shall be of no use in finding my child, if I do not control myself. You will forgive me, won't you?"

"If you think you have need of pardon, yes," the nurse smiled. "I don't think you do have. In your place I probably should have hurled an ink bottle or any other handy weapon at the person nearest me. Now, if you'll let me trouble you for one minute more, I think I can leave you to Mrs. Graham."

"Anything you wish," Lillian said docilely, and Miss Whitlock produced a thermometer which she had kept cleverly concealed, gave it a quick, inspecting glance, put it in her patient's mouth, and placed expert fingers upon her wrist.

"You have marvelous resilience," she said when the minute was over. "I should have had to order almost any other woman to bed for days after such an experience as yours. I shall only ask you to lie down while you talk to Mrs. Graham, and as long afterward as you can."

"I'll promise that, as long as there isn't anything I can do to help in this thing," Lillian assured her gravely. "But if that contingency arises, you and twenty wild horses couldn't hold me."

"I'd be the first to pull you up and start you on your way," the nurse told her, and with a reassuring nod to me, went out of the room. Lillian waited only until she was safely out of earshot before facing me with demanding eyes.

"There's no more hysteria in me, Madge," she said with self-contempt in her voice, and I knew she was scoring herself savagely for the weakness she always had condemned in others. "I'm ready now to face anything you may have to tell me. But first, where's Dicky? Didn't he come with you?"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE "DESCHAPELLES COUP"

M. DESCHAPELLES was a famous Whist player of France. He was particularly noted for a type of play which now is part of the standard equipment of all fine contract bridge players, a play which has been named for him, the "Deschapelles Coup." It consists of sacrificing a high card, which otherwise would be a sure trick taker, in order to knock an entry out of opponent's hand, heading off the run of his suit, and at the same time build up a smaller card as an entry to the hand of your partner, who has a suit of his own to run.

Upon occasion the Deschapelles Coup is used in the case of a suit contract, but more often by the defensive side against a No Trumper, as in this case which came up in a duplicate game. At one table the contract was made because the defense did not use the play, but at another it set the contract.

In the first case the spade K was led, declarer holding up his A, then winning the J with his A. The diamond 4 to the Q was won by the A. East returning the heart 4 to the Q. The diamond 6 to the K won, the club 10 was finessed, and then the diamond 10 lost to the J. Declarer still had the heart A as an entry for his now established diamonds, so took a total of three tricks in that suit, four in clubs, two in hearts and one in spades, getting an extra trick.

At the other table the play was the same for two tricks, then varied. East let the diamond Q win, South finessed the club 10 and then the diamond 10, East winning with the J. He fired back the heart K—the Deschapelles Coup. Now South's goose was cooked. If he ducked that, the next lead would knock out the A. In any event the diamond suit was blocked, so that at the end South had to lead a heart or spade to West for the setting tricks.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Dec. 3.

A STUBBORN chain of adverse configurations among the important planets is observed in this day's astrological chart. Opposition, antagonism, resistance and obstruction may be expected to challenge the utmost powers and talents for overcoming forces for impediment, defeat and hostility. The major conflict may come from elders or old institutions.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which their highest powers for resistance, struggle and fortitude may be called upon to triumph over a succession and variety of antagonistic, undermining and frustrating circumstances, having unhappy reactions on the most intimate relations in life. The emotional upset may be outstanding, calling for especial discretion.

A child born on this day will have a very contradictory nature, with many conflicts and struggles beneath a surface of serenity and restraint. While moody or reserved it will be sociable, friendly and sympathetic.

23 Bodies Recovered In Cadiz Coal Mine Disaster

GRIEVED TOWN TURNS OUT FOR FIRST FUNERAL

Christmas Parade Cancelled, Holiday Lighting Delayed In Respect For Dead.

BULLETIN

CADIZ — (U.P.) — The bodies of four more of the 31 miners killed by an explosion in the depths of the Nelms mine of the Ohio and Pennsylvania Coal company Friday were removed from the workings today.

(By Associated Press)

CADIZ—Workers at the Nelms coal pit turned out today for the burial of the first of 31 blast victims while rescue crews toiled in the gas-filled depths to remove the last eight bodies.

Funeral services were scheduled here at 2 p. m. for Pete Speicher, first of Friday's explosion victims brought out. Twenty-two other bodies were carried to the surface yesterday.

John Mullen, engineer at the Ohio and Pennsylvania Coal company's mine, said four more bodies had been located but that gas and rock falls have prevented their removal. The others have not yet been found.

Mullen said it had been definitely determined that 31 were killed outright by the terrific explosion and buried under tons of rock upwards of 1,500 feet from the entrance to Ohio's deepest shaft mine.

This saddened mining town, of 2,600 population, with the memory still fresh of the nearby Willow Grove mine disaster which killed 72 last March 16, cancelled today's annual Christmas parade and postponed illumination of the Yule decorations on the Harrison county courthouse for one week.

Wrapped in canvas, the bodies were brought out yesterday in pairs and placed in the blacksmith shop. Relatives were admitted in small groups to view them. All the victims were badly burned by the blast.

Victims identified in addition to Speicher were: Homer Knox, Ben Mazeroski, Jesse Rayl, Ed Prather, F. H. Woods, Robert Dinger, Leonard Fannin, Bryan Griffith, William Carr, Emersan Howes, Lewis Sedgmer, Steve Nameth, Ora Forms, Dan Smith, Herbert Jarobe, Frank Mazeroski, John Mattern, Jules Courtville, Joe Hornyak, David McIntyre, Edgar Marchbank, John Smith and John Bernard.

Willkies Return To Florida For Longer Vacation

NEW YORK —(INS)— In jovial mood, Wendell L. Willkie left LaGuardia field for Florida today to "fish, read, loaf and forget about politics" for two weeks.

Before returning to Washington for the annual gridiron dinner on Dec. 14, the unsuccessful Republican presidential candidate will decide on his plans for the future. He gave no hint as to what these might be.

Accompanied by Mrs. Willkie and two friends, Mrs. Ellen B. Hollister of Cincinnati and Charles Francis Coe, the writer, he boarded a chartered plane at the airport at 7:40 a. m. Willkie planned to leave the others at Charleston, S. C., to visit friends, before continuing on to the home of James V. Reed at Juniter Island in Hobe Sound, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Willkie have been in Florida since shortly after election. They flew to New York for the interfraternity conference dinner Friday evening, which Willkie addressed.

Camacho Pledges Cooperation In Defense

Two Mansfield pilots, Charles and Donald Bookwalter saved themselves $40 last week when they purchased a used plane from a Buffalo, N. Y., business man. The ship had been equipped with skiis and was to have been taken to Alaska for use there during the long winter season. The Mansfield pilots were told if they wanted the ski equipment it would cost them $40 extra. They promptly vetoed the idea for the reason that the equipment would have been of little use here.

While driving a group of delegates to the Hi-Y state convention in Dayton last Friday, R. B. Chapman, Y. M. C. A. secretary, thought for a moment that one of his passengers fell out the window. Driving into Dayton, Chapman went past Wright field, where the government tests some of its latest ships. In the car with him was William Zimmerman, son of Maj. James Zimmerman, Air corps reserve, one of Mansfield's most ardent airplane enthusiasts. When young Zimmerman saw one of the latest of Uncle Sam's new planes, he turned down the window and let out a yell that caused Chapman, thinking something was wrong, to jam on the brakes and investigate. Much to his relief it was only Zimmerman showing his enthusiasm over the new plane.

DELAY ACTION ON NEW TAXES

March Income Tax Returns Awaited Before Revenue Bill Discussed.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Congressional tax experts said today that increases in corporate and individual income taxes, rather than in so-called consumer levies, probably would be used to help carry the 1941 fiscal burden.

One prominent tax consultant said no attempt probably would be made to alter taxes such as those on gasoline, cigarets, cosmetics and liquor.

Instead, he said, the treasury planned to boost taxes in existing income brackets, applying to both corporations and individuals, and, if necessary, to broaden further the income tax base to add thousands of companies and persons to the internal revenue rolls.

One senator who has participated in several tax discussions with administration experts predicted that congress would not receive a revenue bill until late May or early June. He said senate and house leaders desired first to watch the progress of March 15 income tax returns. Treasury officials have expressed the hope that these returns will offer an encouragng outlook for the next fiscal year.

It was learned that congressional and treasury advisers who met with President Roosevelt at a supper conference last Friday discussed proposals long pending in congress for reciprocal taxation of federal and state bonds. No decision was said to have been reached. Such legislation would have no immediate effect as a revenue producer, inasmuch as no effort would be made to tax bonds now outstanding.

With congress meeting only twice a week, the tax question probably will remain dormant until Mr. Roosevelt reveals the status of the government's financial structure in his annual budget message to the new congress next month.

UNITED STATES FLEET RATED WORLD'S STRONGEST SEA FORCE

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The navy's high command coupled formal reports today that the United States fleet was "probably the strongest single sea force in the world," with disclosure that additional sea and naval air bases were under consideration.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, revived the controversial issue over establishment of a strong base at the tiny island of Guam—on Japan's doorstep—with the declaration that advanced bases were necessary in both the Atlantic and Pacific to thwart any approach of hostile forces.

Stark's annual report, made public yesterday, followed the same general lines of the report issued the day before by the secretary of the navy, informing the nation that on any comparable basis its navy was "second to none."

The secretary's report asserted, however, that completion of the two-ocean fleet construction program must be pressed "to meet our naval defense requirements simultaneously in both oceans against any possible combination of powers concerting action against us."

"Anything less than this strength is hazardous to the security of the nation," the report said.

Since the end of the last fiscal year, report statistics showed, long strides have been taken toward that two-ocean fleet goal, contracts having been let last Sept. 9 for 200 warships which, when completed, will give the United States the biggest and most powerful navy in world history.

Stark prefaced his recommendations for more shore bases with the declaration that "force is now the only safe insurance of national survival."

INAUGURATION HELD WITHOUT DISTURBANCES

Wallace Praises Hemisphere Stand as Strongest By Mexican Statesman.

(By United Press)

MEXICO CITY—The government of President Manuel Avila Camacho was pledged today to a policy of democratic cooperation in the defense of the western hemisphere.

Avila Camacho was inaugurated in a 26-minute ceremony Sunday, succeeding President Lazaro Cardenas.

The day passed peacefully. There were no reverberations of an alleged plot to assassinate the new president which police claimed to have thwarted. Nor were there any anti-United States demonstrations such as greeted Vice President-Elect Henry A. Wallace when he arrived last week as President Roosevelt's ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to the inauguration.

The enthusiastic official greeting given Wallace, the appointment of pro-United States ministers to the new cabinet, the raising of the navy department to the status of a full cabinet ministry and Avila Camacho's speech were interpreted as favorable indications of closer United States-Mexican relations.

Accompanied by Ambassador Josephus Daniels and 24 other official United States representatives, Wallace occupied a place of honor at the ceremonies.

He said that Avila Camacho's pledge to lead Mexico in hemispheric cooperation "is one of the strongest ever made by any Mexican statesman."

The new president in addressing the nation, said it was fortunate the American nations had pledged cooperation to defend the continent regardless of their differences.

Speaking For Myself.

There are only a few weeks of Winter peace left to Broadway now before the Florida addicts start commuting between Swing street and the sunny sands of Miami and Palm Beach. This would be fine with everyone around Times Square if the folk who trek down to the Everglades and the Roney-Plaza would only treat these trips as they would a safari to California, or New Mexico or Detroit.

But unfortunately the Florida fans have worked up a routine to which those who stay home must submit. It goes with a trip to Florida like a baggage ticket. It is not very entertaining, but the Broadwayites who hug the home fires of the crepes suzettes at El Morocco have learned to take it along with the first snows.

It begins like this. You meet Joe in Sardi's and he says, "Well, take a good look at me. Pretty soon I'll be down in Miami with that ocean and that beach and that cabana."

You say, because this is the first southward bound bird of the season, "Oh, is that so, Joe? Isn't that nice?"

Then Joe sits down at the table. "Yessir," he says, "I'll be feeling sorry for you in a couple of weeks. I'll read about the blizzards in New York and then I will say, 'Boy, bring me a nice tall Tom Collins. I'm getting a little hot.'"

You say, "Well, I hope you have a good time, Joe."

* * *

A few nights later you are in the Stork club and Joe goes past. But not quite past. He pauses to pat the left side of his chest and you hear a crackling noise.

"Got them right in here," he says. "My tickets. I leave Thursday on the Orange Juice Flyer. Last tickets for three weeks. I had to call Eddie Rickenbacker and Dick Merrill to get them. Just try and get on a plane to Florida."

You say, "Well, have fun, Joe."

"I'll send you a postcard," he says, "ha, ha."

* * *

On Thursday you are lunching quietly downstairs at 21 and Joe rushes into the bar. You duck behind a sugar bowl, but Joe sees you.

"I'm all packed," he beams. "All ready to go. Tomorrow I'll be wearing white pants."

"Have a nice trip, Joe," you say.

Joe says pityingly, "Not much chance of your getting down this month, I suppose."

You shake your head. You do not say, "No, not a chance in the world of getting me away from snow at Christmas time and holly berries instead of bougainvillea and New Year's Eve within listening distance of the Times Square racket. You just say, "No, I'm afraid not, Joe. The old work, you know."

"Well, goodbye, kid," Joe says. "I'll be thinking of you when I'm down swimming in that ocean and sunning on that beach and . . ."

"Goodbye, Joe," you say.

* * *

Then ensues period of time in which you do not see Joe. This may be a week or two weeks or a month or even six months. But all too soon, it is over, and one day you are in Lindy's quietly consuming some chicken livers when in walks Joe.

"How are you, kid?" he says. "I just got back yesterday. Boy, am I sorry I didn't take Edna's advice and stay another week."

"Boy," you think but you do not say, "so am I."

"Did you read in the paper about the weather?" Joe demands. "Only rained one day in six weeks. One day. And even then it didn't last. Cleared up in time for me to go to the track. Boy, that track. Those ponies ran for me like they were my little brothers."

"That's fine, Joe," you say.

Joe looks concerned. "You didn't get a chance to come down, did you, kid?" he asks.

"No," you say.

"Too bad," Joe sympathizes. "You would have loved it. All that sun. How do you like this tan?"

* * *

Maybe you do not see Joe for a week after that, but there will come the evening when you decide to take in a movie and you are in the Music Hall about to get into the elevator when you see Joe, also ascending. It is too late to back out.

"This weather," he says. "How do you like this weather? Snow for three days. Took me twenty minutes to get three blocks in a taxi. What kind of living is this? New York is no place to be in the winter time. It's great in the spring, great in the fall when you go to the football games, but in the winter the only place to be is Florida."

"It's certainly cold, Joe," you agree.

Joe is pretty distrait. "Look at what's left of my sun tan," he moans. "Three nights in El Morocco and I look like all the people who didn't go to Florida. The barber uses the sun lamp, and even so, it fades."

"It's a shame, Joe," you say.

* * *

Less than a week later you run into Joe at the Hurricane and although he is even paler than he looked in the Music Hall elevator he is considerably happier.

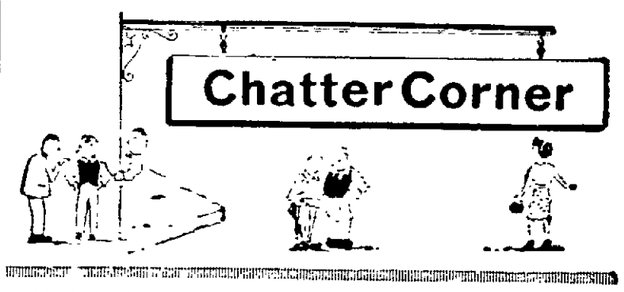
"Well, I made up my mind," he said. "I'm leaving tomorrow. Life is too short. I sent Edna a wire and said I'll be down on the first plane I can get. Eddie Rickenbacker fixed me up.

"Well so long, kid," Joe says. "When it gets below zero up here just think of me down in Miami, in that cabana, with . . ."

* * *

And everything is fine until one day when you meet Pete in Sardi's and he begins "Well, take a good look at me. Pretty soon I'll be in Miami with that ocean and . . ."

You haven't got a chance.



(Just jottings about people you know, as they're seen here and there about town.)

EARLY!

It Will Help Us To Give YOU The Efficient and Satisfactory Service That Is The Aim of Each Postal Employee

Addressing

Address all matter plainly and completely in ink, giving street address, or box or rural route number, whenever possible. Place sender's return card in upper left hand corner of address side. Tags should not be used unless necessary, in which case a copy of the address and return card should be placed inside the parcel, for identification if tag is lost.

Packing and Wrapping

Pack articles carefully, in strong, durable containers, wrap securely . . . but do not seal them except when bearing a printed label reading: "Contents, merchandise—Postmaster: This parcel may be opened for postal inspection if necessary," together with name and address of sender, as sealed parcels not so labeled are subject to the letter rate.

Any late mailing should be sent special delivery, to provide the promptest possible arrival at its destination.

Separate your "City" and "Outgoing" mail and place in proper slots provided at postoffice. When bundles of either "City" or "Outgoing" mail are brought to postoffice, it will help us if they are handed through window in bundles, rather than placed through slots a few at a time. A postal employee will be stationed at mailing slots during the Christmas season.
